Three dedication ceremonies set for Saturday afternoon

By JENNIFER CARR

Battalion Reporter
Dedication ceremonies for the letters on the Kyle Field pressbox and the sundial in the Floral Test Gardens are scheduled for Saturday afternoon with Texas A&M President Frank E. Vandiver officially accepting the gifts.

A plaque in memory of Col. Richard J. Dunn, former Aggie bandmaster and composer of the music to "The Spirit of Aggieland," also will be dedicated Saturday.

The 16-foot bronze-colored "Kyle Field" letters were donated to the University by Thomas R. Frymire, Class of '47. Frymire also donated money for the 12-foot maroon ATM logo on the stadium.

The total project cost was about $111,000, Wally Groff, associate athletic director, said.

"It was basically (Frymire's) idea," Groff said. "He said we needed something (for the stadium) and we agreed. He actually got the idea last fall after the stadium was completed."

Robert S. Boyce, in the systems architect's office, went to work on it, Groff said, and Charles J. Goodwin, Class of '42, solved the problem of attaching the letters to the press box. Goodwin is an engineer in Bryan.

Frymire will be honored with a plaque to be placed near the elevators at the base of the letters during the 3:30 p.m. dedication ceremony. He will receive a picture of his donation, Groff said.

The sundial, donated by Searcy Bracewell, Class of '38, is set for dedication at 3 p.m. in the Floral Test Gardens. The sundial, which has only recently been landscaped, is still missing a plaque.

"There is a plaque about four feet across and about 12 or 14 inches high that tells how to use the sundial," said J. Wayne Stark, special assistant to the president in charge of cultural development.

Bracewell also will receive a picture of his donation, which will be displayed at the president's pre-game buffet.

In a separate dedication ceremony, the Texas Aggie Band Association will unveil a plaque in memory of Col. Richard J. Dunn, who composed the music to "The Spirit of Aggieland." Dunn was Aggie Bandmaster from 1946. He died in 1961.

"It's just to be sure his name will be remembered what he contributed to the development of the Aggie band what it is today, and the camaraderie and the great and fun they had under Stark said.

The plaque was originally sent to Dunn's wife in San Antonio in March 1980 at a request from Aggie band members mounted in Rudder Tower the Office of Student Relations in May 1981, the location of the Hall, Texas A&M's former hall and auditorium.

Married Student Council to hold meeting at Q-Hall

By JOYCE HALLBAUER

Battalion Reporter
The Married Student Apartment Council will host a gathering tonight to encourage couples to participate in the council and in its election of officers.

The meeting will begin at 7 p.m. at the Quonset Huts. Anyone living in Texas A&M University's married student housing will be admitted by showing his apartment key.

Council President Brian Stewart said the officer elections will be Sept. 29-Oct. 5. Residents can cast their votes when they pay October rent, he said.

The four open council offices are vice president of student affairs, vice president of automotive facilities, secretary and treasurer. Candidates must be enrolled in the University. About 20 representatives, students or spouses, will be appointed later, based on the number of residents per complex.

Stewart said the council's main goal is to get people active. Interaction among married students is low, he said. They are too busy with school or work and don't want to get involved, he said.

Communication has to be used inside and outside the council to correct problems in the complex, Stewart said. It's the responsibility of everyone in the housing complexes to care about others and to act when problems are noticed.

Complaints about parking and violations of the handbook, which residents receive when they sign their tracts, are discussed by the council, Stewart said.

"If we can't resolve it in council, we go to the housing manager," he said. "We can correct problems and help."

"We're one of the biggest campus organizations at A&M," Stewart said. The MSC represents over 1,400 people in the married student housing complex. The MSC has representatives on the Student Government and the MSC Council.
