Cowboys dispose of Giants 18-10

United Press International

IRVING — The Dallas Cowboys were at their most vulnerable Sunday, staggering around like a boxer who had chosen the wrong afternoon to step into the ring.

But the New York Giants could never apply the knockout punch and as the oppressively hot afternoon dragged along the Cowboys managed to do what good teams are supposed to do — win when they shouldn't. "We didn't recover from the Monday night game and the loss of sleep," said Dallas coach Tom Landry, referring to his team's winning visit to New England last week. "We had no zip all week in practice."

There was just enough zip, however, to overcome the Giants Sunday, 18-10, and thus keep Dallas unbeaten and tied for the NFC East lead with the Philadelphia Eagles. New York, which came into Texas Stadium with a winning record for only the second time in the last 12 years, dropped back to 2-2.

Even though his team played hard only to come up short, New York coach Ray Perkins sounded like a man who could see the light.

"If we play this way for 60 minutes every game this season, we are going to win a few games. Overall, I think we had as good a game as we could expect."

This was the second home game of the season for the Cowboys and both of them have been played in miserably hot weather. And in the early going Dallas seemed more affected than did the Giants.

During the first half New York drove to the Dallas 17, 39, 20 and 39 only to come up with a mere three points and trail following the opening two quarters, 10-3.

A lightning-quick 86-yard march that ended with a 41-yard touchdown throw from Danny White to Butch Johnson 69 seconds from the end of the half provided Dallas its halftime lead after the two teams had exchanged field goals — a 36-yarder by the Cowboys' Rafael Septien and a 42-yarder by the Giants' Joe Danelo.

"Our offense couldn't take advantage of the opportunities that presented themselves in the first half," said Perkins. "In the second half we couldn't get anything going."

Dallas' defense took over in the final half while the offense continued to sputter. Despite numerous chances Dallas could manage only two field goals during the second half of 20 and 21 yards along with a critical safety that came when defensive end Ed Jones batted the ball out of the hands of quarterback Phil Simms.

The ball bounded back into the end zone, where Giants' guard Roy Simmons fell on it to prevent a Dallas touchdown. The Giants only touchdown came with 56 seconds to play in the game on a 20-yard throw from Simms to Johnny Perkins.

New York had miserable field position to start the second half and it never got better. Dallas intercepted three of Simms' passes, two of them in the second half, and Simms found himself constantly harassed by the Dallas pass rush. The second of Dallas' three interceptions was made by rookie free agent Everson Walls, his fourth of the season.

"When you don't block and run hard then you neutralize your offense and we let New York do that to us," said Landry. "It was a day for the defense. There was a lot of pressure on Simms, particularly by Randy White. That was the story of the game."

Simms was trapped four times for 27 yards in losses, but he completed 285 yards worth of passes. The success he did have in the air allowed New York to outgain Dallas for the game, 343 yards to 317. Danny White, meanwhile, hit on 14 of 27 attempts for 204 yards. Tony Dorsett, who came into the game as the NFL's leading rusher with 423 yards in Dallas' first three games, picked up 70 yards in 22 carries.

"You know, some days the guys on the opposite team are going to stop you," said Johnson in summing up the afternoon. "We were a little flat this week. You just hope you can win after a Monday night game."

"Even if we played poorly and still won, that's the makings of a great team. You can't expect anything more."

"I think we are always flat against the Giants. We just can't get motivated because we think we can beat them and that's no knock against the Giants. We feel that we have a better coaching staff and better athletes right now."

If you think "pads and rollers" are just a California craze, you're not ready for New Memorex.

Pads and rollers are key components of a cassette's tape transport system.

This system guides the tape past your deck's tape head. It must do so with unerring accuracy.

And no cassette does it more accurately than totally new Memorex.

Roller precision is critical.

The new Memorex tape transport system is precision engineered to exacting tolerances.

Flanged, seamless rollers guide the tape effortlessly and exactly. An oversize pad hugs the tape to the tape head with critical pressure: firm enough for precise alignment, gentle enough to dramatically reduce wear.

Our unique ultra-low-friction polyolefin wafers help precision-molded hubs dispense and gather tape silently and uniformly, play after play. Even after 1,000 plays.

In fact, our new

Memorex cassette will always deliver true sound reproduction, or we'll replace it. Free.

Of course, reproduction that true and that enduring owes a lot to Permapass™, our extraordinary new binding process. It even owes a little to our unique new fumble-free storage album.

But when you record on new Memorex, whether it's HIGH BIAS II, normal bias MRX I or METAL IV, don't forget the importance of those pads and rollers. Enjoy the music as the tape glides unerringly across the head.

And remember: getting it there is half the fun.
