Annual pay goes from $1 to $10,200

United Press International
WEATHERFORD — Larmon Stults is getting the raise workers dream of — after working for years at a salary most would consider a nightmare.

After serving for years as a Parker County constable for $1 per year, county commissioners approved a raise in salary to $10,200 for Stults, who also owns a security company. With car allowance and office equipment, Stults will receive about $12,500 annually.

The raise was not a generous gesture by commissioners; Stults had to ask for it.

With the aid of attorney Gary Hagman, Stults approached commissioners two weeks ago about receiving a "fair salary." Hagman quoted a previous Texas Supreme Court ruling which determined a constable must be given a fair salary.

The ruling further stated that commissioners could be subject to prosecution for failing to pay a constable adequately.

Stults is the county's only const-table. Positions in three other precincts have remained vacant for years, presumably because of the inadequate salary. Local officials anticipate greater interest, however, when filing opens for the positions in the next county election.

To fund the new salary, commissioners voted to remove one deputy sheriff's position from the budget by attrition, which angered Sheriff Billy Cain.

"By the commissioners' action, they show they don't understand the problems of law enforcement in the county," Cain said.
Cain had told commissioners $1 was a fair salary for the constable position.

"I think the county commissioners made a mistake," he said.

Commissioners said because of the meager salary, Stults' duties had been virtually nil. With the raise, the officials said the const-table would be performing a more active role in county law enforcement.
