67% vote shuts door

Jaycees: No women

United Press International
TULSA, Okla. — U.S. Jaycees chapters have rejected membership for women for a third time, the organization's president announced Monday.

Jaycees President Gene Honn said chapters across the nation were sent ballots in a referendum to determine whether local chapters should have the option of accepting women as members.

Although less than half — 46 percent — of the about 7,000 Jaycee chapters across the country responded to the referendum, Honn said 67 percent of those chapters voting were against the women's option. Jaycees chapters have voted three times on the women's membership issue, he said, each time defeating the option.

The latest vote, tallied late last week, was the first time the chapters actually voted by ballot in a referendum, Honn said. Each previous time, he said, a voice vote or straw vote was taken during national conventions.

Arthur Boutiette, U.S. Jaycees executive vice president, said Monday chapters not adhering to the vote could lose their charters. Some have in the past.

"Some metropolitan chapters, a few maybe 20, will be very disappointed," he said.

Slightly more than a dozen local Jaycees chapters have had their charters revoked by the national organization or have voluntarily lost their national affiliation because they allowed women to join, Boutiette said.

Some servicemen to receive higher salaries than generals

United Press International
WASHINGTON — Under the new military pay scale, some servicemen and women could make more than generals and admirals. Capt. Louis Colbus isn't gloating or fretting.

"If I make more than the admiral, I guess the smartest thing is to keep my mouth shut, take the money and run," said the Norfolk, Va., Naval Base officer.

Some generals and admirals won't get anything, but the new military pay hikes will mean about $600 more a year for privates, and captains will collect another $3,000 annually.

The wage boost, the second sizable increase in two years, should show up in military pay checks later this month after President Reagan signs the law approved by Congress last week.

The raises — ranging from 10 percent to 17 percent according to rank — were passed in an effort to keep skilled and experienced personnel in the services.

For officers, this year's raise is a flat 14.3 percent, but most generals and admirals will not get any more. That's because they already are up against the $50,000 pay ceiling imposed on all federal employees.

Colbus is a captain with 26 years of Navy service. He has a base pay of $3,849 a month. Including $410 in monthly sea pay, his monthly check comes to $4,259.

With three straight years of sea duty, Colbus told The Norfolk Virginian-Pilot and Ledger-Star he was "not embarrassed" to make more than an admiral.

"When you go to sea, you need enough to maintain a contingency fund," he said. "You ought to have enough money so that wife can get a new tire if one blows out, or that she can get the washing machine fixed if it breaks."

Rear Adm. Clinton Taylor, head of the Atlantic Fleet Training Command in Norfolk, said he had no complaints about junior officers making more than their superiors.

He said the increases would encourage some officers to stay in the Navy, rather than retire after 20 years.

The new raise comes on top of an 11.7 percent hike that went into effect last Oct. 1.

Congress believes the increases will put military pay, when fringe benefits are considered, on a par with similar civilian jobs. It remains to be seen if military men and women agree and stay in the service.

Basic pay is only part of the income of military personnel.

Military personnel also can get non-taxable housing and subsistence allowances, as well as extra pay for special skills or hazardous duty. For example, all officers can get a $94.30 monthly subsistence allowance.

Under the new pay scale, the smallest increase — 10 percent — goes to the lowest ranks. The monthly pay for a private will go from $501.30 to $551.40.

The monthly pay of a captain with eight years in the service will go from $1,753.20 to $2,000 — an annual base pay of about $24,000. A colonel with 16 years' service will get about $37,500 a year.

An Army staff sergeant, grade E6, with eight years' service will be paid $1,060.50 per month — $12,720 a year — instead of the current $910.20 monthly.

The base pay for an E9 sergeant or petty officer can reach $2,130 per month — about $25,500 a year — with 17 years' service. That is 17 percent above current pay.

Vote nears on budget unit

United Press International
AUSTIN — On Nov. 3, Texas voters again will have an opportunity to approve a system to allow someone other than the Texas Legislature to execute budgetary matters.

Every two years the Legislature adopts the appropriations bill — the document that specifies how much the state will spend for the next two years and where it will spend it.

But once the Legislature adjourns, the budget is managed by each state agency under guidelines the lawmakers have prescribed.

Two years ago citizens voted down a proposition that would have given the governor budget execution authority, with the approval of a committee composed of other state officials.

Proposition 3, which will be on the Nov. 3 ballot, would empower the Legislature to authorize a state finance management committee to manage the expenditure of appropriated funds, except constitutionally dedicated funds.

The committee would be composed of the governor, as chairman of the panel, the lieutenant governor, the speaker and the chairmen of the Senate Finance and State Affairs committees and the House Ways and Means and Appropriations committees.

Rep. Bob Simpson, D-Amarillo, sponsored the constitutional amendment during the Legislature's regular session earlier this year. He said, if approved, the constitutional amendment would provide the vehicle for management of anticipated federal block grant funds, and also would save the state money because special sessions would not be required.

"Without it, we may have costly special sessions of the Legislature," Simpson said.

Opponents of the constitutional amendment contend that the committee would assume some of the budget management power that properly belongs to the executive branch, and also some of the budget-setting power that properly belongs to the legislative branch.

They also argue that the committee could use its power to harass some agency heads by transferring funds from one program to another solely on the basis of political considerations.

Opponents also say that budget management is essentially an administrative function, and there is no need for legislative participation.

But Simpson said the committee could not abuse its authority because strict guidelines would be set up for the panel to follow.

"This committee would have only the authority given it by the Legislature and would not have unlimited authority over appropriations, expenditures or transfers of state funds," he said.

Union leader denies cronyism

United Press International
CHARLESTON, W. Va. — A spokesman for United Mine Workers President Sam Church has denied charges from another top UMW leader that Church is guilty of cronyism and running a one-man show.

Willard "Bill" Esselstyn, secretary-treasurer of the international union, made the charges last week in Beckley at a meeting of the Coal Miner's Political Action Committee, the UMW's political arm.

Esselstyn told a reporter from the Beckley newspaper he has "had it up to here" with Church's administration and added he is seriously thinking of running for the union presidency next year.

Eldon Callen, a spokesman for the union, said Monday in Washington that he was not surprised by Esselstyn's comments.

"I've been waiting for Bill to come out in the open with his intentions," he said. "We've been hearing the undercurrents from him since the last board meeting."

Esselstyn, who holds the union's third-highest office, told a reporter Friday that Church had "washed up" and blamed him for a "lack of direction" in running the UMW.

The secretary-treasurer said his relations with Church were all but severed in May 1980, when Church ordered a reorganization at the union's international headquarters in Washington.

That reorganization amounted to cronyism, with friends and relatives of other officers brought in to share in union powers, Esselstyn charged.
