Stones wow fans despite storm

United Press International DALLAS — The Rolling Stones ignored drenching rains and performed to a sellout crowd in the Cotton Bowl Saturday in the last outdoor stop of their 42-city U.S.

The front three - singer Mick Jagger and guitarists Keith Richards and Ron Wood wowed roadies and promoters alike by stepping out from under overhanging tarps to play to the crowd of 80,000, most of whom stayed for the whole show. We were just blown away by one member of the Stones entourage. "A lot of bands left the stage But they were real troupers, and they got soaked."
