Clements announces Monday

United Press International
AUSTIN — Gov. Bill Clements is expected to announce his candidacy for re-election next Monday at a capitol news conference, making him the second official candidate for the state's chief executive office.

Clements said last month that he had "every intention" of running again but declined to make his intentions final until mid-November. Clements spent nearly $7 million getting elected in 1978 and reportedly is prepared to spend more this time.

Dying mare mistreated, poisoned

United Press International
HOUSTON — Animal cruelty investigators called to remove an emaciated and dying mare said the horse was the worst case of animal mistreatment they had ever seen.

The horse reportedly had been ridden as recently as this week despite a festering saddle sore so severe it had cut through to the bone. Its body was so emaciated that its rib cage and most other bones were clearly visible. Much of its hair had been rubbed off in apparent fits of agony.

Officials said the owner fed the mare rat poison Wednesday and then dragged her behind a truck to the front of his home. He called the city to come take the dying animal away.
