Play presents small town realism

Rimers a success for Players

By GRETCHEN RATLIFF
Battalion Reporter
"The Rimers of Eldritch," presented by the Aggie Players in Rudder Forum Tuesday night, was a stark and extremely realistic portrayal of small town life. The play, written by Lanford Wilson, is lengthy and often repetitious, but it does get across its message — no one's life is completely their own in a small town. The plot centers around the events leading up to a killing, the killing and why it happened. All of the Aggie Players gave excellent performances. No weak characters existed among the group.

Especially outstanding were the characters of Mary Windrod, played by Miki Bone, and of Skelly Manor, played by Jay Meador. Windrod and Manor both portrayed elderly women, and they developed their characters well. The audience practically cringed with arthritic pangs everytime they moved.

Everyone from the town gossips to the town tease was represented in this play, and it was a blunt statement about character roles in our society.

The story itself jumped from one situation to the next, and this became confusing at times. Finally, at the end, it becomes clear how all the situations tie together. The two-act play will continue through Nov. 21. The performance begins at 8 p.m.

Student Senate to act on vehicle, pedestrian bills

By NANCY FLOECK
Battalion Staff
Three bills dealing with pedestrian-vehicle regulations will be acted on at tonight's Student Senate meeting at 7:30 in 204 Harmon. The Pedestrian Protection Bill, Bicycle Registration Bill and Motorcycle and Moped Parking Spaces Bill are expected to be presented with favorable reports by the Student Services Committee, said Judy Marcotte, student affairs coordinator for the committee. The Pedestrian Protection bill recommends asking University Police to increase ticketing of illegally parked mopeds and motorcycles, as well as those driven on sidewalks. It also encourages University police to adopt a procedure by which the motorcycles and mopeds of repeat offenders could be impounded. The Bicycle Registration Bill, which was amended by the Student Services Committee, recommends the establishment of a new committee to study the problems of increased bicycle usage on campus. It recommends that this committee include administrators, students and at least one member of the Texas A&M Wheelman Club, and that Vice President for Planning Charles H. Samson be consulted on the matter. The bill originally called for mandatory registration of all bikes ridden and parked on campus. It also recommended that fees from this registration be used to increase the number of bicycle racks and lanes on campus. The original bill also recommended that University police ticket and/or impound non-registered and illegally parked bicycles. The Motorcycle and Moped Parking Spaces Bill calls for continuing expansion of motorcycle and moped parking spaces and asks that these new spaces be placed on streets or in parking lots.
