MSC finances limited by space in games area

Space limitations in the Memorial Student Center's basement recreation area could hinder future profit increases, a Texas A&M official says.

"We all wish we had a heck of a lot more space," Bill Hensel, manager of University Center, said. "Because of our high operational costs, and the room that we have now, we are barely keeping our heads above water."

Last year, the recreational area grossed about $250,000.

The area includes bowling lanes, billiard tables, pinball machines, electronic games, and table tennis.

"Everything we make from the operations of the MSC Complex," Hensel said. "We are heavily dependent on the bowling and games to help finance the center — to help us break even."

Hensel said recommendations have been made to enlarge the center or to set up a separate facility for the games area on the west side of campus.

"Unfortunately, there are no plans for increasing the size of the student center," he said. "Enlarging the center would enable us to put in more games. Because amusement machines are so lucrative, we need more of them."

Bowling and games manager O.C. McCartney said approximately 490 students use the bowling lanes each week. About 200 students play pool and approximately 450 people play pinball and use the electronic games each week.

Texas A&M owns the bowling lanes, the billiard tables and ping-pong tables, but leases the pinball machines and electronic games from Todaro Amusement Vending Service.

"We are providing Texas A&M students with a real nice place for them to come relax and enjoy themselves," McCartney said. "We are here for the students to have a good time."

"We have a real fine group of students who use this facility. I think we get the cream of them at this University. We have never even had a fight down here."

The profits from the games area are up 18 percent from last year.

"It's not only because of the increase in student enrollment, but also because we try to keep our machines and tables coming in," McCartney said. "It's a shame we don't have a larger area to put even more games in, but we are crowded down here. That's the young people here at Texas A&M want and deserve the best."
