Entire backfield named to first squad

SMU lands seven on all-SWC team

DALLAS — Sophomore quarterback Lance McIlhenny and junior running backs Eric Dickerson and Craig James, the backfield combination that helped carry the Southern Methodist Mustangs to their first Southwest Conference title in 15 years, were all named to the first team offensive unit of the UPI all-SWC team Tuesday.

Dickerson, who led the league in rushing with an average of 129.8 yards per game, was unanimously selected as the conference's offensive player of the year and the Mustangs placed six other players on either the first team offense or first team defense.

In addition, Ron Meyer, the quotable coach who took over the downtrodden SMU program six years ago, was overwhelmingly chosen coach of the year by a select panel of writers and broadcasters.

McIlhenny, Dickerson and James were three of the 12 underclassmen chosen to the top 24 positions (including a punter and place kicker).

Joining his SMU teammates on the first-team offense was guard Perry Hartnett and the Mustangs making it on the first-team defense were tackle Harvey Armstrong, linebacker Gary Moten and backs James Mobley and Russell Carter.

SMU's Eddie Garcia was named all-conference kicker for the second year in a row, one of six repeaters on this year's team.

Leading the way defensively was Kenneth Sims, Texas' huge tackle who missed the Longhorns' last two games with a knee injury. Sims edged Arkansas linebacker Billy Ray Smith for defensive player of the year honors.

Arkansas freshman quarterback Brad Taylor, who took over for the injured Tom Jones during the season, was named as newcomer of the year.

Stanley Washington of TCU, who led the nation's receivers until having to miss the final game of the season, and Baylor's Gerald McNeil, were selected as the receiving corps on the all-league team along with Houston tight end Mark Ford.

Ford easily outplayed the pre-season favorites for that position, Texas' Lawrence Sampleton and Rice's Robert Hubble.

Maceo Fifer of Houston and Terry Tausch of Texas were chosen to the tackle positions while Joe Shearin of Texas joined Hartnett at guard and Mike Babb of Texas was selected at center.

On defense, Baylor's Charles Benson was picked along with Smith at the end spot, Grady Turner of Houston and Doug Shankle joined Moten at linebacker and Vann McElroy of Baylor and Butch LaCroix of Houston were named to backfield position with Mobley and Carter.

Texas Tech's Maury Buford was named the all-conference punter. SMU finished fourth nationally in rushing yardage with Dickerson and James becoming the first tandem in SWC history to average more than 100 yards for the same team during the same season.

They did that by alternating at the tailback position. They appeared in the backfield at the same time on less than 10 occasions all year.
