Dallas thrashes Baltimore 37-13

United Press International
BALTIMORE — Dallas coach Tom Landry has won nearly 200 NFL games in his 22-year career and one of the reasons is his ability to provide a game plan that matches the conditions.
Sunday against Baltimore, Dallas was playing without its regular quarterback in a stadium whipped by a stiff December gale. So Landry told his troops to keep the ball on the ground, be conservative and play good defense. The result: a 37-13 romp over the Colts.
The key to Dallas' triumph was Tony Dorsett, who carried the ball 30 times (30 in a single game in his career, ripped off 175 yards and had over the league lead in rushing.
The performance was part of a running game that provided 464 yards on the ground. Dallas is 27-1 in games where Dorsett gained more than 100 yards.
James Jones added another 86 yards via the rush and scored one, while Ron Springs rushed for 40 yards and scored three Dallas touchdowns. Rafael Septien kicked field goals of 42, 35 and 31 yards to round out the scoring for the playoff-bound Cowboys, 11-3 and on top in the NFC East.
"Because of the wind (24 miles per hour at game time), we decided to try and control the ball and keep it on the ground. The team played well and executed and when you do that, you win," said Landry, whose lifetime record is 195-111-6.
Regular quarterback Danny White, the NFC's leading passer before the game, was used as a punter and ran once from punt formation but didn't see any action at quarterback. That left it up to Glenn Carano, a fifth year pro who started his first NFL game.
Carano hit 7-of-18 for 51 yards, second on the Dallas passing sheets, while receiver Drew Pearson. In one of the few flamboyant plays of the day, Pearson teamed up with Tony Hill on a 59-yard lateral and punt play that set up the third Dallas touchdown.
Baltimore's limited success was also on the ground, with Curtis Dickey having his best day of the year. The second-year halfback ran for 130 yards in 15 carries and had TD runs of 67 (the longest of his career) and 20 yards.
Dickey played his college ball at Texas A&M and Colts' Coach Mike McCormack said the telecast back to Texas was an important factor in the runner's play.
"When he's healthy he's tough to stop. I think Curtis was influenced by Dorsett being on the same field and the TV back to Texas. This was an important game for him," McCormack said.
It was also an important game for David Humm, the journeyman quarterback who made his first NFL start after six years in the league. He replaced the injured Bert Jones and got off to a very slow start (missing his first nine passing attempts) before starting to hit.

Tonight's game may mark end of rivalry

By RITCHIE PRIDDY
Sports Editor
The LSU-Texas A&M game tonight may mark the end of an era in collegiate rivalries.
LSU athletic director Paul Dietzel announced last spring that because of different philosophies LSU would not compete against Texas A&M in any sport after tonight.
He didn't mention what the difference in philosophies were, but he hinted it could be centered around the way Texas A&M recruited some of Louisiana's star athletes, namely Johnny Hector, Billy Cannon, Jr. and Rod Richardson.
Hector and Cannon play football, Richardson runs track.
"There are people in the US that we really don't like the way they recruit," Dietzel said last spring. "I think we should play schools with philosophies like ours."
"They are hot at us for coming into their backyard at signing some of their top players," head football coach Tom Wilson said.
"LSU's attitude is that a player shouldn't leave Louisiana, that everybody in the state wants to go there. But, that's not the case. Everybody doesn't think like that."
"They've got no reason to cry," Wilson added. "Over the years it's been a balance out. They will sign about as many players from Texas as we will from La."
Wilson said that Texas A&M could attack them for recruiting one of their top players, Eric Martin. Martin was leaning towards LSU when he signed with LSU. Another player the Aggies were after was lost to LSU was basketball star Leonard Mitchell. Mitchell will start for the Tigers tonight.
"We are not going to yell calf-rope everytime they come to Texas," Wilson said. "We'll continue to go down there and recruit. We'll continue to get most of our people from Texas and they will continue to get most of theirs from Louisiana. It will all balance out over the years."
The LSU-A&M rivalry started with football in 1899 and ended in 1975 after 16 straight years of playing in Baton Rouge. The Aggies wanted out of the contract if they couldn't play LSU on an home-away basis. LSU refused and the contract was not renewed.
However, the home-and-home business was just the beginning. With the hints of recruiting "violations" Dietzel told his staff that the Aggies were not to be included on any LSU sports schedule.

Ladies take sectional v-ball title; advance to regional semi-finals

By GAYE DENLEY
Battalion Staff
The Aggie Ladies weren't told until after they'd won their NCAA volleyball sectional match who their next opponent would be in the post-season tournament.
The 15th-rated Aggies dutifully put away 20-ranked Pepperdine University Friday night in C. R. Rolie White Coliseum, 15-13, 15-12, 9-15, and 15-9, to advance to the NCAA regional semifinals against top-rated University of Hawaii.
Coach Terry Condon had decided before the match not to tell her players that they would have to face the highest-ranked team in the country if they defeated the Waves Friday night. The players were steered away from the pile of game programs on the scorers' table, and fortunately, none of them asked the forbidden question. Only the coaches and the 300 spectators knew who the winners must play.
"Can you imagine trying to concentrate on playing knowing you had to play the best team in the nation next?" Condon said.
The unusual strategy paid off in what Condon said was one of the Aggies' best games all year.
"There was a lot of talking and good things we haven't done before," she said. "It was definitely one of the best wins we've had all season, especially defensively."
