Faculty promotions approved by Regents

Two professors promoted by the Texas A&M University System Board of Regents were "very pleased" Wednesday by the change in their status.

At its Tuesday meeting, the Board of Regents named Dr. Carlton Maxson an associate dean in the College of Science, and promoted Dr. Davis A. Fahlgvist from assistant to associate dean in the College of Geosciences.

Maxson, a mathematics professor, said he was pleased to be asked to serve as associate dean, a position in which he will assist the dean in administrative duties. He said he felt the promotion was "quite an honor."

A member of the Texas A&M faculty since 1969, Maxson is a former assistant dean of the College of Science and a former interim head of the Department of Mathematics.

Fahlgvist has been an assistant dean in charge of the Geosciences undergraduate teaching program since 1979; his promotion, he said, was made to reflect the fact that "undergraduate teaching programs are as significant as other programs in the college."

He added: "Of course, it also implies I'm doing a good job, and I'm honored by that."

Fahlgvist said his promotion will have no effect on the duties he is expected to perform.

The Board of Regents also approved the promotion of 94 Texas A&M faculty members. The action is effective Sept. 1.

Among those promoted, 35 were advanced to full professor, 52 to associate professor. By college and faculty rank, those promoted are:
