Pilot's body found

United Press International OXNARD, Calif. — Almost two years ago, a small plane piloted by Jerry Lively crashed into the Pacific Ocean. The body of his passenger was recovered several hours later, but no trace of Lively was ever found. Officials said Monday, Lively's body — fully preserved and clothed — floated to the surface of the ocean during the weekend. A spokesman at the Ventura County Coroner's office said the body probably had been protected by a covering of sand. An autopsy was conducted and the cause of death was listed as drowning. "He had a broken denture, probably from the impact of the plane hitting the water," the spokesman said. "But he had no other injuries." Lively, 35, and his passenger, Raymond Bouse, 32, both from Oxnard, went down in a Piper Colt Feb. 21, 1980, about 200 yards offshore in the Santa Barbara Channel. Bouse's body surfaced shortly after the accident. Lively's body apparently was trapped in his plane following the crash and was dislodged either when the single-engine plane broke up, or because of wave and sand action caused by dredging in the channel. Workers on a dredging barge first noticed the body and alerted the Coast Guard. Dick McKendry, a coroner's investigator, said Lively's clothing and identification papers also were fully preserved.

Loans

(continued from page 1) charge of 25 cents and is available to all current full-time students of Texas A&M. McFarland said the late charge on little loans 10 or more days past due, has risen to $5. The Bertha Pratt Loan Fund is offered to help graduating students meet the expenses of relocation. This loan has a maximum of $200 which can be repaid in a year. The service charge for a Bertha Pratt loan is $5 for every $100 borrowed. The Student Financial Aid Office also has a loan fund to assist in buying a senior ring, the senior cadet uniform, and in covering the costs of State Board and Graduate Record Exam fees for graduating students. These three loans have an aggregate maximum of $250. The department also offers Interview Loans to assist students in paying for interview trips with prospective employers. This loan has a $200 maximum, repayable within a year. The Emergency Medical Loan has a maximum of $500 to cover the costs of emergency medical treatment. And, the Co-op Assignment Loan for up to $300 is available to students who are enrolled in the Co-op program. These loans must be repaid within the work period. McFarland said the loans are all binding contracts and can be used as credit references later. "Repayment of the loans has been exceptionally good," McFarland said. "We have less than a two percent delinquency rate." Now You Know The most pills swallowed by a patient was 359,061, popped by C.H.A.
