

Prisoners' shootings of blacks racially motivated, officials say

United Press International
PETROS, Tenn. — A prison rampage that left two black prisoners dead and two others wounded was racially motivated, officials said Tuesday.

The four were shot by a white gunman, one of seven white inmates who overpowered guards and overran the maximum security cellblock at Brushy Mountain State Prison.

Warden Herman Davis said the white convicts sawed their way out of their cells in the prison's B cellblock and took four guards hostage Monday night. One of them then fired 12 to 14 shots with a .25-caliber pistol into three different cells.

Less than an hour after the violence began, the white prisoners, some armed with knives, released the guards unharmed and meekly surrendered. Prison guards made a sweep of the prison to search for more weapons immediately after the shootings.

The seven white prisoners were put in the prison control unit, and the two injured inmates were reported in stable condition at Oak Ridge Hospital, each with multiple gunshot wounds above the waist. Dr. Bruce Irwin said: "They'll all probably be OK."

Although Davis said he knew of no motive for the shootings, prison spokeswoman Kay Bradshaw said: "It looks like it was a racial thing."

About 40 percent of Brushy's inmates are black.

Bradshaw said after "lock-down," when prisoners are supposed to be in their cells, the seven whites turned up radios and televisions to drown out the noise, then sawed their way out of four cells about 7:50 p.m. They then overpowered the guards, using their keys to gain access to the cellblock's third tier, where the blacks were housed.

Bradshaw said at least one of the guards was a witness.

The guards were released at 8:40 p.m. after whites had assured associate warden Bill Hobbs by radio they meant no harm to the hostages. At one point, the whites went to the prison hospital and showed Hobbs two of the hostages.

Dead were James Nichols, 35, and James Mitchell, 35, both Memphis. Nichols was serving 120 years for two murder convictions. Mitchell was serving 120 years for robbery with a deadly weapon, first degree murder and armed robbery.

One of the injured was identified as Paul Hawkins of Memphis. The name of the other injured prisoner was not immediately released.

Asked if tension between white and black prisoners at the maximum security institution on the mountains 40 miles north east of Knoxville prompted the shooting, Parish replied, "I think you could assume that. I don't know right now."

Clements terms U.S. policy on illegal aliens 'demagoguery'

United Press International
MEXICO CITY — Gov. Bill Clements says Mexico and the United States can solve the undocumented worker problem if America will dispense with

"political demagoguery."

After meeting with Mexican President Lopez Portillo, Clements told a Monday news conference that the United States "practices political demagoguery" on the issue of illegal Mexican aliens, calling the issue too serious to be converted into a political football.

"We must have full consultation with Mexico," Clements said. "We must have their coordination in implementing any program put forward."

The governor also said any solution to the migrant worker problem should include identification cards that cannot be forged and backed by legal documentation.

Illegal migration to the United States dominated Clements' 30-minute closed-door meeting with Lopez Portillo, as well as afternoon chats with presidential candidate Miguel de la Madrid and U.S. Ambassador Jan Gavin.

De la Madrid, a candidate in July 4 presidential elections, belongs to the Revolutionary Institutional Party, which has not held a presidential election in 20 years.

Clements was scheduled to meet with Gavin again Tuesday before returning to Texas in the afternoon, aides said.

President Reagan has proposed a program to increase Mexico's allotment of U.S. visas from 20,000 to 40,000 a year and to create renewable temporary visas for undocumented workers with several years' residence.

Evangelist delivers sermon, not pizza

Principals said Monday they approved the student assembly so students could hear an inspirational talk on patriotism, love of family and living free of drugs. The talk was to be given by evangelist David Stockwell.

However, during the assemblies held during the day, Stockwell announced an evening program at two high schools led as the world's largest parties.

But, parents and the principals who attended the evening programs said Stockwell delivered a heavy sermon, telling the children to repent or face the Lord's wrath.

"When we got there it was Billy Graham all over again — emotions, revelations, kids crying the end of the world, Russian middle school principal Howard Marsellus said. He said the younger students at Southeast Middle were invited to the evening event at the high schools.

"It was kind of strong — guess he got carried away," Marsellus said.
