Former Cowboy, partner ordered to repay $1 million

United Press International
HOUSTON — A federal judge ordered a former professional football player and his accomplice — both in prison — to pay a total of $1 million to one of their victims swindled in a loan fraud.

U.S. District Judge Ross Sterling issued a summary judgment Tuesday that the Potters Savings and Loan Co. of East Liverpool, Ohio, is entitled to recover the money — plus interest — from former Dallas Cowboy Bill Howton and his partner, Vining Tower Reynolds.

Howton, 50, who also played for the Green Bay Packers, and Reynolds, 39, were convicted last year for swindling a group of investors out of more than $6 million.

According to testimony in the trial, the money was supposed to be used to guarantee student loans, but Howton said it was invested and lost in the volatile Illinois and the Bank of Germantown, Tenn.

The two were convicted of mail fraud, wire fraud and interstate travel with intent to commit fraud.

Border raids deemed 'illegal' by Hispanics

United Press International
EL PASO — Representatives of more than a dozen Mexican-American groups have blasted U.S. Border Patrol for its recent crack-down on illegal immigrants and charged the patrol with illegally harassing Mexican-Americans.

Hispanic groups charged in a meeting Tuesday that U.S. Border Patrol officers have overstepped their jurisdiction by demanding proof of U.S. citizenship at places other than ports of entry.

Cesar Caballero, president of the Concilio de El Paso, accused the Immigration and Naturalization Service of going to barrios and harassing Hispanics who are legally in the U.S.

"In essence, you're singling out our community because we're different in color, culture and dress," Caballero said.

The Border Patrol has arrested 12,360 illegal aliens since early January when Border Patrol chief agent Jack Richardson became acting head of the El Paso sector. Most of those arrested have been Latin Americans, and the majority of them were from Mexico.

The arrests have come mostly in searches and raids at bars, plants and along highways in west Texas and southern New Mexico.

Jose Acosta, a staff lawyer for the El Paso Legal Assistance Society, called the raids a violation of the Fourth Amendment to the Constitution, which protects U.S. citizens from unreasonable searches and seizures.

Hispanics at the meeting said the Border Patrol had arrested U.S. citizens during its dragnets, taking them 20 miles away and ordering them to cross a bridge into Mexico.

"I know of two (U.S.) citizens who didn't have any identification who were put across that bridge," said Raul Nieto, a representative of bar owners in El Paso.

INS officials contended they followed immigration laws meticulously.

"I go out and enforce the law, which I must do," Richardson said.

INS Deputy Director E.M. Trominski said Mexican-American groups called for the meeting with immigration officials to find out whether there had been a change in enforcement policy. Trominski said there had been no change.
