

Rock star urinates on Alamo before sold-out concert

United Press International
SAN ANTONIO — A convention center official, totaling damages Saturday, said he has no objection to a return of rock star Ozzy Osbourne, arrested hours before his concert for urinating on the Alamo. Osbourne, 33, was picked up on a public intoxication charge at 3 p.m. Friday while climbing a column on the Texas side of the site of an 1836 battle of independence considered so sacred that its curators insist on removing their hats before entering.

He was released two hours later on $40 bond, and played to a crowd of 14,000. About 100 fans, turned away from the concert, smashed two-story windows outside the San Antonio Convention Center, police said. "One of them threw a brick or piece of metal and made a hole, then they kept throwing things," convention center events Director Darryl Kinney said. "They were trying to get in, which was very dangerous. But you can't tell me anything. They're crazy."

McKinney attributed the problem to a shortage of police officers.

"There were about 60 officers there," he said. "Next time there'll have to be more police, and they'll have to be out there sooner. But as far as coming back, sure."

Osbourne, whose lyrics and lifestyle celebrate social decay, indicated in an interview after the concert a preoccupation with defiling public shrines.

"My main goal in life is to use the White House steps as a public restroom," he said.

"If I had a kid, I wouldn't let him come to my show."

Officers said Osbourne was polite and docile during the drive to city jail in a police van.

His bail was paid by promoter Jack Orbin of Stoned City Attractions, who also would be presented a bill for damages to the convention center, officials said.

City officials said 24 people, mostly juveniles, were arrested after five two-story windows and six smaller windows and doors were smashed.

Video hero now defender of title

United Press International
HAWNEE, Okla. — Tony Crowell is a true hero, at least to the kids who hang around the Fe Express electronic arcade. For 27 hours he defied extraterrestrial invaders, won, scoring more than 24 million points on one quarter apparently claiming the record for the "Defender" video game.

It made him a star. "I got little kids asking me for autographs," the weary warrior said Saturday. "Some lady came up from Houston, and she said that's all they're talking about down there."

Crowell, an Oklahoma Baptist University student from Okmulgee, ended his struggle at 5 p.m. Friday, but his feat will not be forgotten. "They're going to put a plaque on the machine," he said.

Crowell did not come away unscathed from the day of the Defender. "My hand is really swollen now," he said.

After 12 hours at the machine, he slipped a leather glove on his left hand, which guided the controls, because of a blister.

Crowell apparently snatched the record briefly held by Mark Jennings, 12, of Fort Smith, Ark., who finished Monday morning with more than 20 million points after playing 19 hours. The previous known record was more than 19 million points scored by a Chicago teenager who played for about 16 hours.

Crowell took one three-minute break to go to the restroom, allowing the machine to play itself using some of the reserve ships and bombs.

At General Telephone... We're Not Simply Talking About Service Improvements We're Making Them In The Bryan Division

At General Telephone, better service isn't just a goal, it's a solid commitment. General Telephone spent over 354 million dollars in 1981 on capital expenditure projects (i.e. new electronic switches, expanded cable projects, modernization), and GTE will spend over 410 million dollars in 1982 to provide you the best telecommunications available.

For the Bryan division this investment in service improvement is working as shown below. General Telephone is working hard to continually provide you with the best of service.

The Texas Public Utilities Commission (PUC) has established certain standards in public hearings, and our service results are listed against those standards.
