Group gives women opportunities

Club gives aid to future nurses

by Lisa Thompson
Battalion Reporter
Women seeking nursing degrees and in need of financial aid can get help through the Flag Opportunity Club.

Founded in the mid-1950s in honor of a pioneer newspaper woman, the club has since been providing aid to a select number of career-oriented women.

Named for former Houston Post society editor May Del Flagg, 90, the club was started to aid women aiming for business careers in a time when such women were rare. Since then the club has focused on giving aid to those in the nursing field.

Flagg wrote a series of articles in her Post column in 1954 about women striving for careers in the business field. Grateful for her effort, the women who were featured in the articles organized the club to serve as an employment agency to help women in their situation, club supporter Tina Conley said.

Financial aid are referred to club by club members. The club is oriented; funding is on a private basis, Conley said. The club also sponsors the vocational nursing program at Hermann Hospital and the College of Texas Women's University.

Accident victim's fund small

by Amy Polk
Battalion Reporter
Response to a fund started in January for a hit-and-run victim has been small, says Gustavo Arguello, a friend of the victim.

On Jan. 20, a Columbian student was riding his bicycle to Blinn College when he was struck by a car. The driver of the car was charged with driving while intoxicated.

Gabriel Garzon, 21, received head injuries from the accident. He later was transported to Scott and White Hospital in Temple and he is still unconscious.

Garzon's parents flew in from Columbia after receiving the news about their son. Neither the driver of the car nor Garzon's parents have insurance. A fund to help Garzon's parents pay for the hospital bills was started by Arguello and a couple that helped Garzon at the accident scene.

However, Arguello said the fund only has received about $100. "Response has not been very good," he said. Garzon's hospital bill now exceeds $22,000, said Fernando Perez, Garzon's roommate. Administrators at the hospital are working on a payment plan for Garzon, Perez said.

Jaworski cancels speech at A&M, undergoes surgery

Leon Jaworski, former Watergate special prosecutor, who was scheduled to speak at Texas A&M University on Sunday, has cancelled his appearance.

He was to speak on the opening day of the Texas tour of the Magna Carta; however, Jaworski underwent surgery Tuesday in Houston and will not be able to be here.

Political Forum and Great Issues, the MSC committees sponsoring the speakers for the three-day exhibit of the Magna Carta, are in the process of reviewing a list of possible replacements for Jaworski.

Oliver Fiennes, Dean of Arts, is still scheduled to speak Sunday at the Magna Carta exhibit. Fiennes is traveling document on its way to the campus at 12:30 p.m. Tuesday on the second day of the exhibit.
