

Four MSC committees to ask for subsidies

by Johna Jo Maurer
Battalion Staff
The MSC Council will hear proposals from four committees requesting funding from MSC Development and the enrichment fund tonight at 7:30 in MSC 216.

Proposed requests for funds from the enrichment fund must be approved by the council. The enrichment fund was started by a group of former students interested in supplementing the MSC Council budget for programs and projects and to help start new programs.

The Awards Banquet Committee is asking for an enrichment fund subsidy for awards, decorations, programs and brochures for the April 3 banquet. This banquet is funded totally by ticket sales and donations, not student service fees, Council President Doug Dedeker said.

MSC Basement is requesting funds to improve the acoustic quality in "Rumours."

The MBA/Law Day Committee is requesting an enrichment fund subsidy to counter deficits experienced at this year's program.

Dedeker said this request may meet with opposition at tonight's meeting. He said the purpose of the enrichment fund is not to bail out a committee, but to aid in the development of new MSC programs and projects.

MSC Spring Leadership

Committee will ask the enrichment fund board of directors to underwrite a $2,253 loss sustained this year. This program is funded through donations, but the committee has not broken even yet, Dedeker said.

The committee will try to raise the money themselves by the fall semester. Enrichment fund subsidy — if the proposal is approved — will cover whatever is not raised by then, Dedeker said.

As part of the council's continuing appointment of new officers, nominations will be heard for unfilled positions of two directorate chairmen, two council officers and six project chairmen.

Many students begin to feel panic-stricken as the deadline for income tax returns draws near — but help is on the way.

Students and people with lower incomes will be able to get assistance in completing their income tax returns from members of Beta Alpha Psi, the Texas A&M chapter of the National Accounting Honor Fraternity, at a booth in the Memorial Student Center. The service will be free.

located around the country," Kyle C. Mann, Beta Alpha Psi president said. "And this is an annual event for us at A&M."

"Students can come with all of their different information and problems, and we'll correct them if it's necessary. Basically, this is a question-and-answer session." VITA can help anyone with 1040 or 1040A forms, Mann said.

Ex-chemistry department head to return to A&M in summer

by Joe Sloan
Battalion Reporter
Former head of the Texas A&M Department of Chemistry, Dr. Choo-Seng Giam, will leave his post as dean of the College of Science at the University of Texas at El Paso and return to Texas A&M University this summer.

"Officially I just went on leave and am now returning," Giam said.

Giam is a leading researcher in environmental organic chemistry and cited problems with his many research projects as his reason for returning to Texas A&M.

"I have a very large research group with over $1 million in grants, and there were some serious logistical problems in moving it to El Paso," Giam said.

Giam left Texas A&M last year on a leave of absence to head UTEP's College of Science. Donald Bowen, UTEP assistant to the vice president of academic affairs, said the university has adequate facilities for Giam's projects.

But Bowen said Giam had trouble convincing some of his employees to move to El Paso.

"We made every attempt within the limits of this university to keep him," Bowen said.

"We are very upset about his leaving because we have never had a man of Dr. Giam's stature here before."

Dallas County group endorses judicial candidates

United Press International
DALLAS — The chairman of an organization of Dallas County lawyers and businessmen said he believes the newly formed group will be a significant tool in aiding voters in selecting non-partisan judicial candidates.

Forrest Smith, head of the Committee for a Qualified Judiciary, said he believes the group's endorsements ultimately will be more significant than the Dallas Bar poll, which judicial candidates traditionally have used in their campaign literature.

The CQJ Friday announced its endorsements in contested judicial primary races.

However, Smith said the group did not back candidates in six of those races because a two-thirds quorum of the 150-member committee was needed.
