Court refuses to halt redistricting plan

United Press International
AUSTIN — The U.S. Supreme Court Monday denied a request that it halt implementation of a court-ordered redistricting plan for Texas House and Senate seats and delay the May primary and November general election.

Without comment, the justices turned down the request made by the Associated Republicans of Texas, an Austin-based group challenging the constitutionality of legislative redistricting plans drawn by the three-judge federal panel.

ART had hoped to halt implementation of the plans at least until its appeal on the merits of the case was heard by the court.

Patricia Hill, a Dallas attorney representing ART, said the appeal of the case could still be heard, but that it appeared elections would be held under the plan handed down by the judges.

The districts drawn by the federal panel are similar to those drawn by the Legislative Redistricting Board, but later invalidated by the U.S. Justice Department under the Voting Rights Act.

Career women suffering

Stress linked to jaw ache

United Press International
PHILADELPHIA — Dental surgeons say that at least 10 million Americans — most commonly career women — suffer from a stress disorder of the jaw joint that can cause many physical problems.

Eight hundred doctors at a weekend convention of the American Association of Oral and Maxillofacial Surgeons concluded that clenching of the teeth can overload the joint. This can cause headaches, an inability to open and close the mouth properly, painful clicking, locking of jaws and ringing in the ears.

The joint is known clinically as the temporomandibular joint and it moves each time the jaw moves.

"The hyperactivity of the jaw muscle is related to stress," said conference moderator Dr. M. Franklin Dolwick, an associate professor and coordinator of research at the Department of Oral and Maxillofacial Surgery at the University of Texas Health Science Center.

"Some people react to stress with ulcers or high blood pressure and some grind their teeth.

"The constant clenching of the jaw causes fatigue of the muscle that can cause tension headaches over the temples. In the long term it can cause disease in the muscle, degenerative joint disease or disk displacement."

Dolwick said 5 percent of the population suffer from TMJ disorders that need medical attention.

A profile of TMJ sufferers shows that they are usually women, 20 to 40 years old, who are competitive, upper-middle class, have trouble coping with stress and are self-reliant. The doctors said they have also noted a marked upswing among career women with TMJ symptoms.

TMJ symptoms can be headaches, facial pain, locked jaws and ringing in the ears.

"Depending upon the cause and severity of the problem, treatment can be medication, relaxation therapy or surgery."

Dolwick said new technology has helped greatly in diagnosing TMJ problems.

One device can be used to record muscle contractions of the jaw that correlate with specific occurrences such as the appearance of a feared boss.

He said pinpointing the cause of tension is vital to avoid surgery and stress control programs can teach patients to relax jaw muscles through biofeedback and special exercises.

Judge denies money owed plaintiff influenced decision

United Press International
DALLAS — A state district judge, accused of conflict of interest after ruling in favor of a businessman to whom he owed $42,000, says his financial obligation did not influence his decision in the civil suit.

Judge Joe B. Burnett last year granted Dallas insurance millionaire John Abdnor a permanent injunction against District Attorney Henry Wade, June 3, 1981 — prohibiting the district attorney from seeking the psychiatric records of Abdnor's son, who was charged with murder and planned a defense of insanity.

Abdnor's son was convicted of murder and sentenced to life imprisonment last October.

The Dallas Morning News reported Sunday that while Burnett was acting as judge in the lawsuit, Abdnor's company was holding nine overdue notes signed by Burnett.

Burnett said he did not consider his financial obligation to Abdnor a conflict of interest, nor did he let it influence his ruling.

"I don't think it was a problem from either of the litigants' standpoint," Burnett said. "Although looking back, I should have (disqualified) myself."

"Judges have human frailties just like anybody else. I made one (mistake) by letting Abdnor help me financially. But it's done and I can't do anything about it."

However, Wade, who said he was unaware of the debt Burnett owed Abdnor until recently, said the circumstances reinforce his belief that Burnett was biased in his ruling.

"There's no question there is conflict of interest if you hear a case involving a close associate or personal friend," Wade said. A provision of the Texas

Code of Judicial Conduct states that a judge should withdraw from a case in which the judge has a financial interest in the subject matter in controversy or in a party to the proceeding. Burnett excused himself from the case in February.

Burnett said he borrowed $28,000 from Abdnor's insurance company and allowed Abdnor to co-sign two bank loans in 1974 when he was re-establishing his law practice after losing an election. Abdnor paid the $14,461 balance on one of the bank loans he had co-signed after Burnett defaulted.

Abdnor noted that the loans were made when Burnett was off the bench.
