

Man who threatened Reagan loses probation

United Press International
LAKEWOOD, Colo. — A man convicted of threatening President Reagan's life has been arrested for violating his probation by failing to participate in a mental health program.

Authorities said Edward M. Richardson, 23, of Drexel Hill, Pa., was arrested Friday. He was placed in Denver County Jail in lieu of $25,000 bond.

Richardson, who reportedly shared accused presidential assailant John W. Hinckley Jr.'s obsession for actress Jodie Foster, was arrested April 7, 1981, while en route from New York City to Washington carrying a .32-caliber revolver.

Letters later found in his motel room in New Haven, Conn., indicated Richardson planned to try to kill Reagan, Secretary of State Alexander Haig or Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C.

One letter said "Hinckley was only the beginning." It also said: "I will finish what Hinckley started. R.R. must die."

"Ultimately, Ronald Reagan will be shot to death and the country turned to the left," the letter said.

Richardson pleaded guilty last July to two counts of threatening the president's life and was sentenced to one year in prison and five years' probation.

He was required to take part in a mental health program as a condition of probation.

Ready! Aim! Fire!

In an Army training exercise on the use of military weaponry held Saturday at the International Shooting range at Texas World Speedway, David Godinich, an agricultural economics senior from Galveston, instructs sophomore cadet, Brian Pold, a health education major from Lemont, Fla., in the proper use of the M-60 machine gun. Other weapons used in the exercise include the M-16 automatic rifle and the .45-caliber automatic pistol. Cadets also practiced field exercises and learned about chemical warfare. The training exercise is held to familiarize the cadets with the weapon systems they will use in their training at Fort Polk.

Naval base to get fuel from wood chips

United Press International
BRUNSWICK, Maine — U.S. Naval Air Station in Brunswick will become the first wood-heated military base in 1984, further reducing dependence on imported oil, according to Energy Dept. officials.

The publication said wood chips will displace 2.2 million gallons of oil, costing $1 million to steam the base's 200 buildings.

The wood chips will cost $25 a ton. The base plans about 50,000 tons a year.
