New potato needs no eyes

by United Press International

This spring a new gardening experience awaits the estimated 38 million Americans who will plant vegetable gardens — growing potatoes from seed.

For over 400 years, potatoes have been produced from pieces of potato tuber called "eyes" or "tuber seed pieces." Now, after five years of laboratory research and field testing, potato seeds are available to gardeners.

The developer of the first

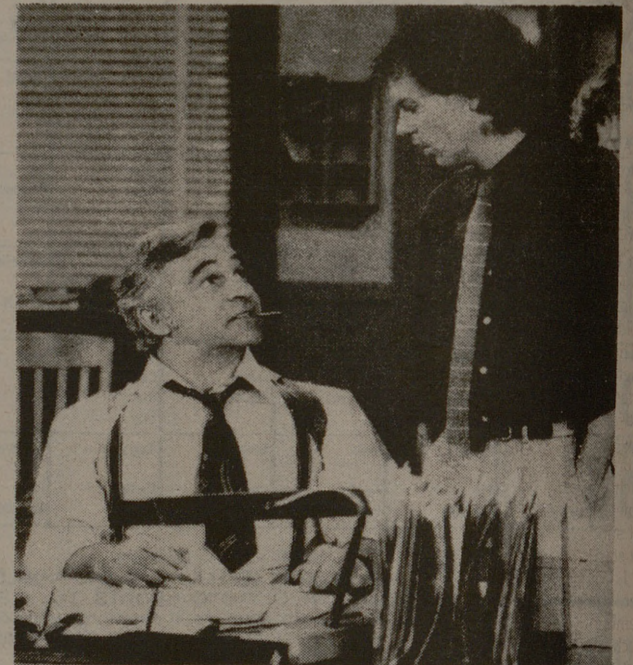

"true potato seed in North America," Pan American Seed Co. of West Chicago, Ill., calls it "the greatest introduction in home gardening since the stringless string bean."

The new seed, called Explorer, is available in major seed catalogs and as plants in greenhouses and garden centers across the country, spokesmen said.

Potato seed makes it possible for home gardeners to plant potatoes along with tomatoes, peppers and other vegetables, instead of weeks earlier during cold weather, and like the other vegetables, can be started in a warm place, and transplanted to the garden after all danger of frost has passed.

The seed developer also claims Explorer potatoes are cleaner than potatoes grown from potato eyes because most diseases cannot go through the seed stage.

The company says seed potatoes produce a small to medium-sized round white potato which can be harvested after 90-100 days for a "new" potato flavor.

Murphy (Michael Keaton, r.) starts worrying that Charlie (Donnelly Rhodes) is going bonkers in "Report to Murphy," Monday on CBS.

'Tornado Jam' concert scheduled for May 1

by United Press International

LUBBOCK — Concert promoters expect between 20,000 to 35,000 people will attend the third annual Tornado Jam concert May 1 in Buddy Holly Park.

The concert, produced by Feyline Productions of Denver, will feature Joe Ely, Leon Russell, the original Crickets and Joan Jett & The Blackhearts.

Also scheduled to appear are Gary Morris, The Maines Brothers, Terry Allen, Jay Boy Adams, The Planets and Alvin

Crow.

Local promoter Steve Moss said a Dallas firm was contracted to build a temporary fence almost 4,000 feet long with four entrance gates to hold the crowd, which may swell to 35,000 people.

Moss said 25 uniformed police officers and about two dozen "peer security officers" will provide security at working gates and stage entrances.

Unlike the two previous Tornado Jam concerts, $5 admission will be charged this year.
