

Budget talks near goals

WASHINGTON — After weeks of wrangling, a bipartisan group is in the last negotiations in its drive to reach a compromise on President Reagan's proposed 1983 fiscal budget. Talks resumed Monday and Senate Finance Committee Chairman Robert Dole said an acceptable compromise may only be a few days off.

House and Senate leaders met at the White House for three hours Sunday as part of a month-long search for an acceptable spending package. "We're in the home stretch,"

Dole said of the Sunday conferences.

Senate Republican Leader Howard Baker did not participate in Sunday's talks, but said he believes there is a 50-50 chance that there will be a settlement acceptable to President Reagan, House Democrats and Senate Republicans.

Other legislators participating in Sunday's meeting were Senate Budget Committee Chairman Pete Domenici, R-N.M.; House Budget Committee chairman James Jones, D-Okla.; House Republican leader Bob Michel of Illinois; White House chief of staff James Baker; and Treasury Secretary Donald Regan.

President Reagan declined to participate in the meetings and returned from Camp David just before the meetings broke up.

Baker, appearing on CBS' "Face the Nation," warned that if the compromise talks failed, the situation would get worse with budget cuts and tax hikes being debated in Congress amid increasing animosity.

"We will enter an absolute jungle of conflict," he said.

Reagan's proposed $757 billion budget calls for more cuts in social programs, an increase in defense spending and a projected record deficit of $101.9 billion — a figure that has made Republicans facing re-election nervous.

Boys' home reunion lures grateful alumni

CHICAGO — Retired bank presidents, consultants, grandfathers and college students — they came back to the school for troubled boys where they got their start. Lawrence Hall School for Boys, now 114 years old, drew 37 of the 12,000 boys who have called it home to the first reunion it has ever held.

The gathering Sunday was small in numbers, but big in terms of the emotion that filled the alumni who returned to Lawrence for a day.

Gene Christie, who attended the school from 1932 to 1942, joked that he loved the school so much he and his wife constructed a small facsimile.

"We raised our own Lawrence Hall — nine children and three grandchildren," Christie said. "The school gave me a lot, and I hope we're able to give something back to the boys who are here today."

Lawrence Hall-Randall House was founded in 1868 as a home for homeless boys. It has since evolved into a refuge for boys between the ages of 7 and 18 who have emotional problems.

Hudson, a retired bank president who lives in Wausau, Wis., attended Lawrence when it was an orphanage. He said he remembers strict discipline and "baths on Saturdays."

"It might sound a little unusual," he said, "but three or four of us and in for that weekly scrub."

"We showered during the week, but the weekly scrub was the big one — long scrub back scrubs."

Ed DeHart, who is consulting firm in Waukegan, Ill., said Lawrence was only home I knew. DeHart said he has brought each of his three children back to Lawrence so they could see their dad come from
