Aggies win soccer tournament

The Texas A&M women's soccer team won the four-team Chris Mendell Memorial Tournament, held in Austin the past weekend. The tourney, which featured competition in both men's and women's divisions, included Texas, Texas A&M, Tulane and a team composed of former UT students. In their first game, the Aggies defeated the Texas Exes 4-1, with Carol Smith, Renee DeLassus, Stephanie Barrett and Daphne Love each scoring a goal. While holding the Exes to only two shots on goal, Texas A&M managed a total of 40 shots during the match. The Aggies then outscored UT 4-1, as Smith, Carol Gittinger, Laura Estes and Jamie Fougeron scoring the four goals. In Saturday's final match of the round-robin tournament, Texas A&M topped the Tulane Green Wave 7-0. Four soccer recruits from Texas have decided to attend Texas A&M, coach Jim Butts said. The team, although having varsity status, will not give any scholarships to its members. Three of the recruits played for the Dallas Sting, one of the top 18-and-under women's soccer teams in the state. Anna Marie DeFelice, Mary Smith and Bettina Bernard announced their plans to attend Texas A&M in the fall. The sister of Aggie all-star Carol Smith. Jennifer Ecklund, from Dallas, is Butts' fourth recruit this spring. The team will lose Barbara Beck Carpenter, who is no longer eligible to play.

Basketball players arrested D.A. considering charges

United Press International LUBBOCK — The district attorney's office was considering charges Wednesday against two Texas Tech University basketball players accused of vandalizing a dormitory restroom, a spokesman said. The two players, one of whom finished his eligibility this year and the other a freshman, were arrested early Sunday for partially destroying a bathroom in Weymouth Hall, a dormitory that houses most of the university's athletes. Texas Tech head basketball coach Gerald Myers, contacted at his office today, refused to comment on the incident. The two players reportedly knocked down partitions between toilet stalls, smashed sinks and broke a mirror in the dormitory restroom. "We still don't have everything we need (to file charges)," said Don McBeth, a spokesman for the district attorney's office. "We have requested more information. The initial report said there was $3,000 in damages (to the restroom)." "A second report put damages at $4,500. Then we heard that some of the damage might have occurred before the incident. We want to know what we're talking about before we jump in." In a copyrighted story, the University Daily, reported that Texas Tech athletic department officials had applied pressure to obtain lesser charges against the two students. The student newspaper also said the athletes accompanied by a member of the Red Raider Club, an organization that promotes university sports, when the pair was questioned by investigators. Joel Brandenburg, the paper's editor, said a gag order was put on the picture of the restroom was detained and the debris was cleaned up. "being real guarded." McBeth denied that officials had interfered in the investigation.
