The Texas A&M University Association of Former Students has honored 85 students for academic excellence and outstanding contributions to student life.

"This ceremony is an effort to recognize some of A&M's finest," Ken Johnson, 1981-82 student body president, said at the ceremony Wednesday night.

Two types of awards were presented to students: the Gathright Scholar Awards and the Buck Weirus Spirit Award.

Gathright Awards were presented to 33 students. High achievement in academics is the basis for this award, said Dr. John J. Koldus III, vice president for student services.

James Jeter, assistant executive director of the Association of Former Students, said the award went to the sophomore, junior and senior student with the highest GPR in each college.

The Buck Weirus Spirit Award was created to honor Richard "Buck" Weirus, director emeritus of the Association of Former Students. This award, presented to 52 students, recognizes high achievement in extracurricular activities which contribute to student life.
