Roadblocks, 21 deaths mar Texas' holiday

United Press International
As the long Memorial Day weekend sped to a close, some south Texas officials defended their holiday roadblock.

The unofficial death toll compiled by United Press International Monday was 21 deaths on Texas highways for the period beginning 6 p.m. Friday. Texas trailed only California and Florida in fatalities as more than 200 deaths were reported nationwide.

Near Freeport, police from three communities set up roadblocks to check motorists traveling to Surfside Beach. The traffic checks by Angleton, Clute and Richwood police departments netted about 128 tickets and nine arrests, mostly for drunken driving.

"All we want to do is make sure there are no drunks driving on the road," said Sgt. M.E. Norman of Clute department. "A couple of times we just told the driver to let someone else in the car who was sober get behind the wheel."

Clute City Judge Bobby Smith said, "I think we are getting a bum rap. We feel like we're trying to save people's lives. We haven't had a fatality in the county due to Surfside traffic in the last two weekends. The weekend before we couldn't say that."

Department of Public Safety spokesman said troopers were patrolling highways in full force in an effort to keep highway speeds near the required 55 mph.

The weekend death toll included six people killed while riding motorcycles and pedestrians struck by vehicles.

Jeffrey Smith, 24, of Dallas Hospital was pronounced dead at a Dallas Hospital after a motorcycle hit a car at North Central Expressway, medical examiner's spokesman Monday.

Smith was driving the cycle, which was carrying a senger, when the vehicle and flipped several times. The accident threw the senger feet from the point of impact. The patient was taken to Presbyterian Hospital but a name and condition unavailable.

Neither rider was wearing a helmet.

A Abilene boy, 15, was late Sunday when the car on which he was a passenger was struck from behind by an automobile as the two were southbound on U.S. 75 in Jones County.

Department of Public Safety investigators said Douglas Wright was not wearing a seat belt when the motorcycle struck.

Also killed Sunday in a car accident was Daniel Hebert of Corpus Christi. He was riding in a crashed car when he was killed by a car driven by Gregory. Three people were injured in the accident and taken to hospitals in Corpus Christi.

One accident early in the day period claimed for a when an 18-wheeler struck cars which had collided at 290 and FM 1098 in Jones County Saturday.

King Ranch heirs to argue in court

United Press International
SAN ANTONIO — The mysterious inner workings of the fabled King Ranch and the family that runs it are to be spilled in federal court this month in a suit charging that $70 million was not enough for land that one family member sold to others.

Belton K. Johnson, great-grandson of Capt. Richard King who founded the 130-year-old ranching empire, wants another $15 million to $60 million for oil and gas royalties on the share of land he sold in 1976.

Attorney Cecil Munn said Monday that ranch officials "did not disclose a very material amount of information about a very substantial amount of money, which would have made a difference in (Johnson's) decision to sell."

When Johnson agreed to sell his 12 percent interest in the ranch, he had not been told that Exxon Co. USA owed King Ranch Inc. royalties for gas produced on the ranch. Exxon eventually paid $150 million in royalties.

But the attorney for the ranch, Jack Hebdon, said Johnson not only knew about the royalty but had actively pursued it.

The family's investment, however, did not provide definite information. March 1977, four months after Johnson sold out, Hebdon said, "There was no intentional concealment of anything from Mr. Johnson," Hebdon said. "He simply did not check things he could have checked because he was anxious to sell."

"He was worried about changes and tax laws," Hebdon said. "The (corporation) made the best offer, and he jumped on it."

Some family members talk Johnson out of selling, he threatened to sue or sell land to Arabs, Hebdon said.

This suit is the first infighting among King Ranch heirs that has been made public. The haranguing began in 1925 when Hebdon's father, Henry King died and the South Texas ranch, with headquarters in Kingsville, was divided among heirs.

Space shuttle test gives crew a feel for flight

United Press International
SPACE CENTER, Houston — Space officials said Monday that the 57-hour simulation of the space shuttle's fourth flight will give astronauts and mission control personnel experiences similar to what they will have in June when the Columbia launches again.

The simulation, which began Tuesday at 8 a.m. and is scheduled to run through late Thursday, picked up the mission at one day, 18 hours and 30 minutes after launch. Since the activity involves some classified aspects pertaining to the Defense Department payload, the simulation will be closed to the press and public.

Astronauts and ground-based flight controllers gain experience during flight simulations. The time segment covers a major portion of critical tests scheduled for STS-4.

Crew members are Mattingay as the commander and Henry Hartfield as pilot. For the exercise, they will be in a simulator which provides sensory and data feedback similar to what occurs in space during a flight.

The simulator will be operated with the Mission Operations Control room, where crews of flight controllers alternate shifts.

Simulation hardware reduces imaginary problems participants. At the time of simulation, the crew is unaware of what the problems will be.

Consequently, both the and ground crew receive training in dealing with unexpected events like those which might occur during the mission. Other, shorter, simulation tests will be conducted for various launch and landing situations, as well as critical orbit operations.

The Columbia is scheduled for a seven-day mission launch planned no earlier than June 27. It will be the final shuttle orbital test.
