

Hurricane season makes expert wary

United Press International
MIAMI — The six-month hurricane season opened Tuesday and weather officials say 60 million coastal residents may be in for disaster because they ignore evacuation warnings and live in poorly constructed dwellings.

Dr. Neil Frank, head of the National Hurricane Center, said the problem is compounded because most of the residents of the hurricane-prone Atlantic and Gulf coasts have never experienced a major hurricane and are not sufficiently wary of the force of nature's most deadly phenomenon.

Frank said many people are either unprepared or geographically unable to evacuate in time.

A behavioral study by a Miami engineering firm, as part of a comprehensive evacuation plan for Dade and three other counties, bears out his fears.

The survey showed more than one out of every four people living near the south Florida coast would defy orders to evacuate their homes in the face of an approaching hurricane.

Frank also foresees problems in getting out people who want to leave. Many coastal areas have no effective evacuation plans.

A hurricane slamming into the U.S. mainland is more deadly than either a tornado or an earthquake. The prospect of one occurring this year, Frank said, makes him very nervous.

Inadequate construction is a great concern.

"We know how they (coastal buildings) were engineered but not how they were built," Frank said. "I think most of the big ones will survive but you just don't know how they were built so you can't say with 100 percent assurance they will survive."

An average of two major storms hit the U.S. coast every three years. With more and more buildings and people along the coastline, the peril increases during the June 1 to Nov. 30 storm season.

Derailment may pollute water supply

United Press International
COLONIAL HEIGHTS, Va. — A fire in a burning fuel tank car was brought under control Tuesday and state health authorities said another derailed car may contaminate a town's water supply.

Crews worked to clear tracks of wreckage from the 28-car derailment of a Seaboard Coast Lines train Monday 50 yards from an elementary school, an official said.

"Most of the vehicles have left and they're clearing the tracks," said Marvin Clipp, principal of North Elementary School.

The fire was brought under control about 4 a.m., Clipp said, adding that school would be open Tuesday.

He said officials, concerned that one end of a fuel tank car may have spilled fuel into a tributary of the creek from a bridge, still were testing water from Swift Creek. The car is hanging over a railroad bridge.

The creek feeds the Appomattox River upstream from where Hopewell draws its water supply.

The car loaded with jet fuel additive exploded when the right train derailed on Amtrak's main East Coast artery shortly after 1 p.m. Monday.

Nixon predicts Reagan win

United Press International
NEW YORK — Former President Richard Nixon predicts Ronald Reagan will win re-election in 1984, defeating Sen. Edward Kennedy, who, he says, is burdened by a 1960s mentality and needs to lose 20 pounds.

In an interview with CBS Evening News correspondent

Diane Sawyer, Nixon said there was no way the Democrats would nominate former Vice President Walter Mondale because he is "just a warmed-over Carter."

If he chooses to run, Nixon said, Reagan would win because he has kept his promises.

He said by 1984 Reagan will say, "I promised that I was going to cut taxes and I have."

"He will have cut taxes, he will have cut inflation, he will have cut government spending and he will have cut unemployment," the former president said.

Kennedy, Nixon said, must do a number of things before he can seek the nomination. "He's got to lose some pounds," Nixon said. "He has got to enter the '80s rather than the '60s. He's got to have some new ideas."

Asked how smart the president is, Nixon replied, "Smarter than his critics. He's given him credit for."
