High court decisions mixed on desegregation

United Press International
WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court Wednesday upheld a ballot initiative approved by California voters that limits school desegregation, but struck down a Washington state measure attempting to ban busing for racial balancing.

Writing for the court in the California case, Justice Lewis Powell declared, "Proposition 1 does not inhibit enforcement of any federal law or constitutional requirement."

He concluded the state previously had "gone beyond" constitutional requirements to prohibit racial bias in schools, and that in passing Proposition 1 voters merely "chose to pull back" by limiting state court power to order busing and pupil transfers.

Standing alone in dissent, the court's only black justice, Thurgood Marshall, argued the court was acting and inconsistent in upholding the California measure while striking down the Washington initiative.

But in the Washington case the court by the narrow margins declared Initiative 5 violates the equal protection clause of the Constitution.

Medflies have flown, say state agriculture officials

United Press International
AUSTIN — In summer 1981, Texas agriculture officials established roadblocks along highways entering the state from California and warned of potential disaster if the Mediterranean fruit fly made its way from the West Coast to the Lone Star State.

This year, worries about the medfly have been minimal. The discovery of a fertile medfly last week in California has caused some concern among Texas agricultural officials, but they have not yet taken any extraordinary steps to protect the state.

After a year in California, Aggie defenders who returned to Texas plans to trap the pest. The 37-year-old defensive campaign from 1972 to 1979 accepted the state's job.

"We're team with the state," Sloum said. "We look very serious about the problem."

Sloum said the traps are checked every two weeks, but Texas officials have not found a medfly since trapping began a year ago.

"If something did come now, we could detect it in time," he said. "We would wipe it out before it became a problem," he said.

Alvin Ashorn, Ivie's assistant in the Texas agriculture department, said state officials have constant contact with California to monitor the medfly outbreak, but has reason yet to be concerned.

"This may just be a light infestation," Ashorn said. "If serious infestation, we're to hear of additional findings rate they are trapping."
