Juror's charges end trial

United Press International
CLEBURNE — A district attorney confirmed that a state senator was named as receiving the services of prostitutes, but the name may never be revealed because a mistrial was declared in the case of three men accused of operating massage parlors. State District Judge C.C. "Kit" Cooke declared a mistrial Monday for Aubrey Joyce Estes Jr., 50, of Midlothian; and John Binion Cook, 27, and Hayden Walter Tomlinson, 23, both of Burselon.

The men were being tried on charges of organized crime and aggravated promotion of prostitution. The mistrial came after a juror alleged a lawyer and the three defendants visited him at the freight company where he worked. Johnson County Attorney Dan Boulware confirmed a state senator consorted with one of the defendants and received prostitution services from some of the girls named in the case, according to a report in the Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

Boulware declined to name the senator. Juror Jesse McIntyre claimed the defendants and Estes' attorney, Mike Rogers, visited him at the Freight Masters office in Fort Worth a week before jury selection. McIntyre told officials Tomlinson said he knew McIntyre was scheduled for the jury and said: "I just wanted you to know I'm innocent." Attorneys denied McIntyre's claims. Rogers said the official jury list was not available at the time McIntyre said they visited him. Boulware said the Texas Rangers and DPS investigators were questioning jurors about possible perjury and jury tampering. Officials said a grand jury would consider possible charges, against McIntyre or others, on Friday.

Untidy apartment cause for eviction

United Press International
DALLAS — A community action group has waded into the fight to keep the Dallas Housing Authority from evicting a tenant from her rent-subsidized apartment for untidy housekeeping. The Association of Community Organizations for Reform Now protested the eviction of Dorothy Wilson, 49, from her west Dallas apartment Monday at a news conference in the office of project manager Carlos Garcia.

Garcia said Wilson had lost two appeals and was due to leave Monday. He said he would give her another week, but she would have to leave. "We have to put our foot down somewhere," Garcia said. "We have been working with this lady since April. We do have to evict people who don't abide by the rules." Agency director Jack Herrington said Wilson's eviction is part of a general crackdown on lease violations. He said 157 of the residents at the agency's 6,000 apartments have been evicted so far this year, compared with 280 for 1981.

Wilson has lived at the project since 1978 and is current in her $15-a-month rent, but Garcia said her poor housekeeping violates her lease. "The only thing she has done is not keep her house clean," said ACORN spokeswoman Dorothy White. "There are a lot of homes like this with only a little path through them. Why pick on her?"

Kidnapped baby returned to mom

United Press International
GALVESTON — A 1-day-old baby taken from her mother's arms almost a week ago by a woman pretending to be a nurse was returned early Tuesday, a spokeswoman for John Sealy Hospital said. The baby, Christina Lynn Lewis Haynes, was in excellent condition, medical personnel reported at a news conference. Her mother, Carolyn Haynes, was near tears as she told reporters she was happy at the return of her kidnapped child and wished the unapprehended abductor would seek help. Haynes, of Beaumont, did not show any anger toward the abductor and said, "I hope she gets some help if that's what she needs." The baby was taken from her mother's arms July 13 by a woman dressed in a surgical uniform. She was returned early this morning to the Galveston Police Department by a man and a female companion, police said.
