Peso-crisis victims to get help

United Press International
WASHINGTON — The Small Business Administration, with a $200 million emergency program, is trying to rescue U.S. companies including those in Texas along the Mexican border that are struggling under the recent peso devaluation.

SBA Administrator James Sanders said the effort would provide reduced interest rate federal loans and guarantee private loans to small businesses whose trade has been cut by up to 50 percent by the "peso crisis."

The Aug. 5 devaluation of the peso, the most recent and drastic over the past six months, made U.S. goods more than twice as expensive as they had been in American stores for Mexicans shopping across the border and changing pesos to dollars.

At the same time, it made goods in Mexican stores far cheaper for American consumers armed with dollars. As Sanders announced the relief program in Washington, similar news conferences were held simultaneously by SBA officials in California, New Mexico and Arizona.

"We hope this situation will correct itself," said Sanders, adding that the program would be evaluated in December and, if necessary, extended. "The immediate crisis is for these people to pay their bills month to month."

Ford and Chrysler may follow General Motors' price-cut lead

United Press International
DETROIT — General Motors Corp. took the auto industry by surprise Tuesday by saying it was cutting prices on some of its 1983 models by as much as $1,500 and would keep the cost of other cars at the 1982 level.

Increases on the rest of the fleet will mean an overall price hike of about 1.9 percent.

The action by the No. 1 automaker left some dealers wondering how they will get rid of 1982 backlog in showrooms because the '83s are not due out until later this month.

Officials at the other Big Three automakers are expected to take a close look at GM's pricing decision. Ford Motor Co. and Chrysler Corp. generally follow GM's lead in such matters. A Ford spokesman said the

Ingrid Bergman cremated; family and friends attend

United Press International
LONDON — Swedish-born actress Ingrid Bergman was cremated Wednesday in a private funeral ceremony attended only by family and close friends, a funeral home spokesman said.

Among those attending services at the Swedish Church and West London Crematorium were her four children, Harold's funeral home said.

Bergman died Sunday on her 67th birthday after an eight-year battle against cancer.

A public memorial service will be held at a later date to allow fans to pay tribute to the three time Oscar winner. Bergman achieved fame for her roles in such cinema classics as "Casablanca," "Gas Light" and "Intermezzo."

In an acting career that produced 25 movies, Bergman won Academy Awards for "Gaslight" in 1944, "Anastasia" in 1956 and "Murder on the Orient Express" in 1974. She also won a Tony award for acting on Broadway.

Her last role was that of Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir in the television biography "Golda."

Bergman's marriages to eminent Swedish neurosurgeon Petter Lindstrom, film director Roberto Rossellini and Lars Schmidt all ended in divorce.
