the ground, and he got hit from the side above the knee in the thigh area. He really took a crazy fall, though. I wasn't sure if his injury was a leg injury or a back injury at first when I saw that crazy fall, because he came down on his chest with his legs up in the air."

Jackson, however, will be out for only about two weeks after sustaining a mild sprain to his right knee. Lagan said Jackson should be ready for the Aggies' game in two weeks against the University of Texas-Arlington.

In realistic tone, Sherrill seemed to hint that the media and Aggie followers might have expected too much from the team in its opener under an entirely new coaching staff. "No one said it'd be easy," he said. "I've been there before. The last eight months have been very, very hectic. There are an awful lot of things that we've accomplished during that time, but like I've told the players, you've got to learn how to lose before you can learn how to win."

And, Sherrill emphasized, the Aggies will not allow themselves to fall apart after only one loss. "That will not happen," he said. "I've been there before. It would be awfully easy for me to ... say we have no football team or program, but I'm not going to do that. We lost because we didn't do a good job."

"We will not be a poor football team. This is something that they will remember. We put ourselves in some bad situations ... quite a few times and put ourselves in some bad situations in the secondary."

"We played too much man defense. When you play man, you've got to get to the quarterback, but you've also got to cover the people."

Sherrill said his squad and assistants should learn from the season-opening defeat.

"You win with class the same as you lose with class," Sherrill said. "If you understand why and how you lost, and how to correct it, then you're going in the right direction. The players were ready to play, but we just gave (Boston College) some things that we shouldn't have."

Quarterback Gary Kubiak, who had to be helped off the field after a third-quarter sack by defensive end Russ Joyner, said the Eagles surprised him with their anticipation of the Aggies' offensive maneuvers.

"They seemed to be know more about what we were going to do than we knew about what they were going to do," he said. "We've had a lot of attention, and it would be easy to say it distracted us, but I really feel that we've worked harder than we ever have."

"I don't think anybody could have told me that we were going to go out there and get beat like that. But we've got 10 other ball-games to play this season, so we can't let one like (this) kill us."

Defensive tackle Keith Guthrie, who finished the night with only one tackle, said the Aggies faced a talented team that was more than ready to play.

"Flutie's a real good player," he said, "and Boston College has a real good team. A lot of polls have us picked between 10 and 13 in the country, but we didn't go out there with that on our minds. People are going to be after us because we've got something to play for. At times we played well, and at times we sputtered."

Sputtering or not, the Aggies did manage to outdo the Eagles 24-22 in the first down department, with Kubiak completing 23 of 43 passes for 260 yards and one touchdown. His longest pass of the night went for 22 yards to sophomore split end Jimmy Teal, who led Texas A&M with five receptions for 81 yards.

Sherrill, utilizing fullback George Smith after the injury to Jackson, watched the freshman rush for 41 yards on four carries and catch two passes for 13 yards.

Braves lose to Montreal despite one-hit pitching

United Press International
If the Atlanta Braves should happen to roll over and die in the last month of the season, a proper epitaph would read: "They died with their boots in place."

A lack of defense in the clutch, especially at shortstop, has hurt the Braves considerably in their second half of the season drop from what was once a lofty perch atop the National League West standings.

Shortstop Rafael Ramirez, who seems to fold up under pressure faster than an accordion, booted a ground ball by Gary Carter with two out in the ninth inning Sunday to ruin a combined one-hit performance by Rick Mahler and Gene Garber and allow the Montreal Expos to score a 2-1 victory.

Ramirez's error, his second of the game and 31st of the season, enabled Andre Dawson to score from third with the winning run. With one out in the ninth, Dawson was hit by a pitch thrown by Garber, 6-8, then stole second and moved to third when Al Oliver grounded out. Carter then followed with his grounder to short which Ramirez booted. Ramirez picked up the ball and made a strong throw to first base but Carter was called safe by first base umpire Satch Davidson.

Atlanta first baseman Chris Chambliss did not think Carter was safe.

"It was a close play and it should have ended the inning," said Chambliss. "But I figure he (Davidson) had made up his mind 10 seconds earlier that no matter what happened Carter would be safe."

Montreal's only hit was a second-inning homer by Oliver, his 20th, and the Expos' manager couldn't remember a Montreal team ever winning a game in which it got only one hit.

"That's an unusual way to win and, I am not sure, but this could be the only game in our 14-year history when we won after picking up only one hit," he said.

Steve Rogers allowed six hits in going the distance for his 16th victory.

The triumph moved the Expos to within 3 1/2 games of first place St. Louis in the NL East while the loss left the first place Braves only 1 1/2 games ahead of Los Angeles in the NL West.

Elsewhere in the NL, San Francisco beat St. Louis 5-1, Philadelphia edged Houston 4-3, Los Angeles nipped Pittsburgh 2-1 in 10 innings, Chicago beat San Diego 5-1 and New York crushed Cincinnati 10-2.

In American League games, New York whipped Kansas City 18-7, Detroit topped Oakland 8-1, Boston edged Seattle 6-5 in 10 innings, Baltimore nipped Minnesota 5-4, Chicago beat Texas 10-7, Milwaukee defeated California 8-5 and Toronto downed Cleveland 6-5.

GIANTS 5, CARDINALS 1 — At San Francisco, Joe Morgan's two-run double capped a four-run eighth-inning that enabled the Giants to sweep their three-game series with the Cardinals.

DODGERS 2, PIRATES — At Los Angeles, Ron Reed led off the 10th inning with a double and scored the winning run when outfielder Tom Frobel, playing in his first major league game, lost Greg Babbitt's fly ball in the sun.

CUBS 5, PADRES 1 — At San Diego, Keith Moreland hit a 13th homer of the year to light a four-run fifth inning that gave the Cubs their victory.

METS 10, REDS 2 — At New York, Ellis Valentine hit a two-run homer to highlight a seven-run second inning and Ron Bochy drove in four runs with three hits to power the Mets to victory.

YANKEES 18, ROYALS 4 — At Kansas City, Roy Smalley and Dave Winfield each hit two homers to lead the Yankees to a rout of Kansas City. Ron Guidry, 14-5, picked up his victory.

BREWERS 8, ANGELS 1 — At Milwaukee, Don Money and Mark Brouhard's two-run homer sparked a five-run sixth inning that gave the Brewers their victory.

ORIOLES 5, TWINS 4 — At Baltimore, pinch-hitter Tommy Singleton drilled a two-run single in the sixth inning to spark a three-run rally that lifted the Orioles to their eighth straight victory.

RED SOX 6, MARINERS 1 — At Boston, Carl Yastrzemski's RBI grounder with none on the bottom of the 10th sent Jerry Remy with the winning run. The Red Sox rallied in the ninth for three runs to tie the score 5-5. Carney Lansford's RBI double and Steve Stapleton's two-run single to tie the game into extra innings.

TIGERS 8, A's 1 — At Detroit, Larry Herndon hit a two-run homer and Lynn Jones drove in a two-run single to cap a five-run third inning that ended the two-hit pitching of Jack Morris, 15-14.
