Rock music causes action in Milwaukee

United Press International
MILWAUKEE — A minister's crusade and a disk jockey's high rise stunt have made rock 'n' roll the burning issue in the land where beer and butter are king.

Backers of a minister who claims rock music is the work of Satan will get a record crunch.

On the flip side, a radio deejay has vowed to camp on a 21st floor building ledge until the rock group the Who agrees to play Milwaukee on its farewell tour across the nation.

The Rev. Paul Risley of the interdenominational Cornerstone Church of Burlington said he will hold two-hour seminars tonight and Tuesday night on "The Power of Rock 'n' Roll." On hand will be a garbage compactor for those who want to crush records they consider evil, he said.

He said he doesn't condemn all rock music. But he thinks many rock stars, either knowingly or unknowingly, are sending messages about devil worship through their lyrics or are including trappings of witchcraft and satanism on their album covers.

He cited 55 dangerous performers, including the Rolling Stones, Black Sabbath, Alice Cooper, Uriah Heep and Ozzy Osbourne.

Risley said part of the Led Zeppelin's song, "Stairway to Heaven" — played backward — says "Here's to you sweet Satan."

Meanwhile, WQFM deejay "Tim the Rock 'n' Roll Animal" climbed out a window to his perch outside his station's newsroom Sept. 16 to lobby for the Who's appearance.

He said he would come down when the group agrees to perform in Milwaukee.

Fast food chains argue over advertising claims

United Press International
MILWAUKEE — The judge was not pleased with being kept late in court to deal with a squabble over advertising claims between Burger King and McDonalds on a Friday afternoon.

"If both of your slogans had any meaning, we wouldn't be here in this court," grumbled U.S. District Judge Eugene P. Spellman at the 4:30 p.m. hearing. "If 'I deserved a break' it certainly would be on Friday afternoon, and if 'I had it my way' I wouldn't be here."

McDonalds is suing in hopes of eventually getting an injunction against Burger King television commercials — due to be used for the first time next week — which claim hamburger lovers prefer its Whoppers over the opposition Big Macs.

Spellman did not rule on the injunction.

But the judge ordered Miami-based Burger King to turn over to McDonalds copies of the commercials and results from a nationwide "taste test" the firm says shows most people like the Whopper better.

McDonald's attorney Gary Senner said the commercials are "false and misleading advertising."

10 indicted on charges of running 'slave ring'

United Press International
LOS ANGELES — Seven of 10 people accused of running an international slave ring that sold Indonesians to wealthy homeowners looking for cheap domestic servants were out on bail Saturday.

U.S. Magistrate James McMahon set bail Friday at $250,000 for Nasim Mussyry of Beverly Hills, and ordered him to surrender his passport. Bail for Moses Aslan of Los Angeles was placed at $100,000. Five other suspects in the servant scheme were ordered to post $10,000 bail. All seven posted the bail and were released.

Three of the suspects named in a 52-count federal grand jury indictment Thursday were not in court. Two of them were being held in Jakarta, Indonesia, the FBI said, and the other was expected to surrender soon.

The indictment was unsealed Thursday after a 16-month investigation into allegations that 50 Indonesians, ranging in age from 18 to 40, were recruited in that country to work in the United States for two to three years with the promise of a beginning salary of $100 a month.

They reportedly were given passports, visas, round-trip airline tickets and sometimes money to show immigration officials. But when they arrived in Los Angeles their documents were said to have been taken away to keep them from leaving.

The Indonesians, supposedly imported from late 1978 through mid-1981, went to work for some of the defendants or relatives of the defendants, or their services were sold to others who paid $2,000 to $3,000 for each worker to an account in a Jakarta bank, the indictment charged.

Also indicted were David Mussyry, of Jakarta, Indonesia; his sisters, Elsa Singman, Lily Judah and Hilda Sassoon of Los Angeles; his brothers-in-law, Jack Sassoon and Saul Mizrahie of Los Angeles; his nephew, Elie Mizrahie of Los Angeles and Mordecai Sassoon of Jakarta.

David Mussyry, reportedly the main operative in Indonesia who recruited workers through his travel agency, and Mordecai Sassoon were being held in Jakarta.

Each of the defendants was charged with conspiracy. Some face additional counts of enticement into slavery, holding people in involuntary servitude and peonage, fraud and misuse of visas, and bringing illegal aliens into the United States.

If convicted, the defendants face a maximum of five years in prison and fines ranging from $2,000 to $10,000 on each count.
