

Hostage, 4, sent to foster home

United Press International
RALEIGH, N.C. — A 4-year-old girl held hostage by her uncle in a sweltering Amtrak car for three days with her dead mother and infant brother went to a foster home crying and clutching a bag of toys because her father refused to claim her, officials say. A tearful Zuli Ramirez, holding a bag of the toys from well-wishers, said goodbye Wednesday to the staff of the hospital where she was taken Monday after her uncle, a convicted drug dealer, released her from a tiny Amtrak sleeping car where she was held three days. Police said her uncle, Mario Navas, 29, shot and killed her mother, Maria Ramirez, aboard the Miami-to-New York Silver Star last Friday just as the train pulled into the Raleigh station. Zuli's brother, 9-month-old Joan Ramirez, died of dehydration sometime Sunday morning.

Zuli was forced to live with the decomposing bodies in the hot, 6-by-10-foot compartment until Navas handed her through a window to an FBI agent.

Navas is being held without bond on two counts of murder and one of kidnapping. Federal authorities in New York said Wednesday that Navas had been convicted of masterminding a vast drug-running operation.

Police said they had located a man who claimed the woman slain in the Amtrak car was his wife, but who was reluctant to come to Raleigh.

"We have been told by a man in the Miami area that he is the husband," said Capt. Robbie Carroll.

Carroll said the man, identified as Altamar Ramirez, told police the more than $5,000 cash found in the train compartment belonged to Mrs. Ramirez.

"The other agency is talking to him and their information is he has no plans to come to Raleigh," Carroll said. "I would not consider it normal for a man who has a family involved not to want to come up."

Wednesday, a New York attorney confirmed he was the "padrino" or "godfather" who persuaded Navas to surrender. Paul E. Warburgh, 41, who said he witnessed Navas' wedding in 1976, said he expected to be Navas' defense attorney.

Warburgh said Navas has a wife and two sons about 10 and 14.

Preliminary reports indicate Navas was convicted of cocaine distributing and conspiracy charges in 1976 in New York and sentenced to 13 years in prison along with his wife, Estella.

Suspects names mixed up

United Press International
AMARILLO — Confusion developed today as to the identity of a man wanted in an extortion hoax against Tylenol manufacturers and who may be a suspect in a jewelry store robbery.

FBI Agent Tony DeLorenzo said officials had issued a warrant for Robert Richardson demanding $1 million in an extortion hoax linking his wife, ex-employer to the recent contaminated-Tylenol deaths in Chicago.

However, FBI agents in Dallas today identified the extortion suspect as Terry Dean Richardson. DeLorenzo said authorities were unsure if the two men were the same.

Robert Richardson, about 33, is accused of mailing a letter to Johnson & Johnson Corp., parent company of Tylenol manufacturer, threatening a second round of poisonings unless $1 million was put in a Chicago bank account.
