

Group sets anti-porn week

United Press International
TUPELO, Miss. — Nearly 200 religious, political, business and educational leaders have signed an "Articles of Concern" document urging President Reagan to enforce obscenity laws, it was announced today.

The Rev. Donald E. Wildmon, head of the National Federation for Decency, said the document also calls upon the American public to observe Oct. 23 to 30 as Pornography Awareness Week.

Wildmon said the articles also urge churches to observe Sunday as Pornography Awareness Day, corporations to cease advertising in pornographic publications and retail stores to stop selling pornographic publications. In addition, the document calls on video outlets and theaters to refrain from showing and selling pornographic films, television cable systems to refrain from airing pornographic films, and newspapers and other media to refrain from advertising "X" rated films.

During the week, Wildmon said, CBN Cable will show a special series on pornography. The programs, Wildmon said, will be hosted by Carol Lawrence, Pat Boone, Art Linkletter and Pat Robertson.

He said the Chicago Statement Foundation will sponsor rallies and newspaper ads in New York, San Francisco, Washington, Houston, Dallas, Oklahoma City and Chicago. "Corporations supporting advertising funds will be listed in the ads," Wildmon said.

Additionally, Wildmon, a United Methodist minister, said the NFD will use the week to begin a monthly "Pornographer Of The Month Award." He said he will make the first award at a luncheon-press conference in New York Oct. 29.

Wildmon said that "about 25

major advertisers have already informed him they planned no future advertising in Playboy, Penthouse and other pornographic magazines."

Dangerous chemicals may be sent to Texas

United Press International
NEW ORLEANS — Emergency crews have unearthed two additional barrels of potentially dangerous white phosphorus at the 1984 World's Fair construction site, only to be told there is no place to dispose of the chemical.

The discoveries Tuesday brought to seven the number of phosphorus barrels found at the site in two weeks. The first five were burned at a National Guard armory in St. Tammany Parish, but the armory has refused to burn any more of the substance.

If the chemical cannot be burned at the Camp Villere Armory, it may have to be sent to sites in Texas or Alabama for disposal, said Francis Keevers, executive director of the New Orleans Exhibition Hall Authority.

Construction of the fair's

Louisiana pavilion has been suspended while emergency crews search for additional drums of phosphorus, which can ignite when exposed to oxygen.

Officials have no clue to the source of the barrels, Keevers said, because names and dates on the drums eroded long ago.

The construction site, on the Mississippi River in downtown New Orleans, previously housed a railroad yard.

Pre-election violence, bombs torment Ulster

United Press International
BELFAST, Northern Ireland — As voters went to the polls Wednesday to elect their first local assembly in 10 years, army experts defused a bomb near a Protestant party leader's home.

"It was a fairly deadly one," a police spokesman said. "Anyone in that house would have been roasted alive."

James Molyneux, the leader of Ulster's largest Protestant-led party, narrowly escaped death Tuesday when another bomb, set by leftist guerrillas intent on sabotaging the election, exploded at the Belfast headquarters of his pro-British Official Unionist Party.

There were no injuries in Tuesday's blast but police said there have been 21 explosions and 12 murders in pre-election violence.

A package containing a quantity of explosives and 2 gallons of gasoline was found on the window ledge at the home of Molyneux's brother in the village of Crumlin, 12 miles west of Belfast, the police spokesman said.

Molyneux, leader of the Unionist Party since 1974, lives about 100 yards away, the spokesman said.

Security officials warned of an impending bomb blitz by the Provisional Irish Republican Army and its Marxist splinter group, the Irish National Liberation Army, which claimed responsibility for Tuesday's bombing.

"Both are in possession of explosives and are planning further murders," a police statement said. "It is crucial that persons at risk take the maximum precautions to ensure their own safety."

Police and army leave was canceled and an estimated 20,000 officers and troops were on the streets in towns and villages across the province as voting got off to a slow start.
