Stocks continue rebound

United Press International
NEW YORK — Stocks climbed higher in heavy trading Wednesday as Wall Street's super rally tried to maintain a rebound from its worst loss in 53 years.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which went up 10.94 points Tuesday after dropping more than 14 points at mid-session, was ahead 0.64 to 1,006.71 at 11 a.m. EDT. It had been ahead by more than 5 points at the outset of trading.

But on Monday, the Dow average plunged 36.33 points in its steepest setback since Oct. 28, 1929 — the day before Black Tuesday and the panic which led to the Depression — following an unprecedented 260-point surge the previous 10 weeks.

Advances led declines by a margin of 92. Volume at the first hour was about 25 million shares compared with about 29 million in the same period the previous day.

Chrysler workers
steely against strike

United Press International
DETROIT — United Auto Workers overwhelmingly rejected a strike against Chrysler Corp., deciding instead to resume contract negotiations after Jan. 1, when the union hopes to gain pay increases the automaker claims it can't afford now.

Workers at 54 Chrysler locals Tuesday approved by a 70 percent margin the resumption of contract talks, instead of a strike that would have begun Nov. 1. UAW President Douglas Fraser said the strong vote against a strike may have reflected workers' fears that their jobs at the still-struggling automaker might be lost if a walkout took place.

"A strike would have been risky — a strike would have put the company in jeopardy," Fraser said. "And we knew that. You can't underestimate the intelligence of our membership — I think they indicated that with this vote."

About 35,000 of 42,000 active production workers voted. Official vote tallies will not be available until today but there were unofficially 24,076 votes for a resumption of talks, 11,107 for a strike. About 91,000 active and laid-off workers were able to vote.

Analysts said a strike would have cost $45 million to $60 million per week and severely damaged Chrysler. Fraser was critical about how quickly the company would have gone to court.

Thomas Miner, Chrysler president for industrial relations, said the company "gratified" to hear the outcome.

"We believe a strike against the company would have had serious consequences and we have jeopardized the jobs of Chrysler employees," he said.

Fraser said he was confident the UAW could obtain a better contract for workers than the original agreement which was rejected Oct. 14 after two weeks of voting on ratification.

"I think we can still do it in January than we did in October," he said.

The current pact will remain in force until after the first year, when bargainers will meet again. The unprecedented came a week after Chrysler refused to grant immediate raises to its hourly workers
