The beer worth fighting for

4 MIAs' bodies returned

United Press International
TRAVIS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. — Four flag-draped coffins bearing the bodies of four American servicemen killed during the Vietnam War were returned to the United States, but no relatives were on hand.

There was only a brief ceremony when the plane carrying the caskets landed Friday at Travis Air Force Base after a flight from Vietnam. Because of the rain, the ceremony was held in a hangar.

The Army said the caskets contained the remains of Robert D. Trier, Memphis, Tenn., an Air Force major whose F100 was shot down over North Vietnam Dec. 20, 1965; and Navy personnel Donald P. Frye, Los Angeles; William B. Jackson, Stockdale, Texas; and Donald P. McGrane, Waverly, Iowa.

The three sailors were lost in a fiery crash of a Sea King rescue helicopter operating over North Vietnam on July 19, 1967. The chopper flew from the USS Constellation.

The remains were turned over to an American delegation in Hanoi on Oct. 14 by Vietnamese officials who released what they thought were the remains of five U.S. servicemen. The Army laboratory in Honolulu found that two sets of remains belonged to one man.

Since the war ended in 1975, the remains of 80 other Americans have been returned. The Central Identification Laboratory also has received remains of 121 Southeast Asians at first thought to be Americans.

Also returned on Oct. 14 were the identity cards of three other Americans who have been among the 2,493 Americans listed as missing in Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia.

They were identified Friday as Air Force Maj. Roosevelt Hestle Jr., Orlando, Fla., an F105 fighter-bomber pilot shot down over North Vietnam July 6, 1966; Navy Lt. j.g. Fredric Woodrow Knapp, Huntington, N.Y., lost Nov. 2, 1967; and Navy Lt. j.g.

Joe Russell Mossman, Springfield, Pa., lost Sept. 13, 1965. Both Knapp and Mossman were A4E pilots shot down over North Vietnam.

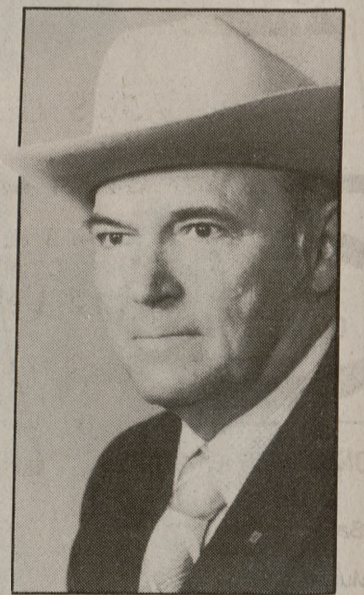

A Pacific Command spokesman said no explanation was given about the recovery of the name tags, or why the military "dog tags" which are worn at times were not turned over.
