

Aggies

"I was very, very proud of the way they came back in the second half and scored, and the defense played well, too. Except for the two long runs, the defense stopped Dickerson. On his first run, Dickerson just plain outran everyone, and his second one was just a great run. He broke several tackles and just took it all the way."

Although Texas A&M's bowl chances don't look promising at this point, Sherrill had a prediction to make.

"We're going to reach a point where we're going to be very awesome," he said, "so all those people had better get their licks in now."

Defensive end Paul Pender said the Aggies lost a great deal of their offense and an important leader when Kubiak was injured.

"A lot of our offense revolves around Kube, and when something like that happens, it really takes a lot out of the attack," he said. "I think that defensively, we fought back well from that. I'm just real proud to be a part of this defense, because it played well."

And what happens now, with Lou Holtz's fast-improving Razorbacks just around the corner?

"It's like Coach Sherrill told us," Pender said. "There's two ways we can go. We can let this loss affect us or we can continue to improve and come back and play good football. Despite the score and the loss, we played well under the circumstances."

Aggie linebacker Bobby Strogon, who finished with eight tackles, also said he was proud of the defense's effort.

"The defense didn't let up at all during any series," he said.

"It wasn't the offense's best day, but the defense came in and tried to stop them the best we could."

Several post-game comments indicated that the Mustangs may have run up the score by going for what amounted to an unneeded touchdown late in the game. But Strogon didn't look at it that way.

"If we were in the same position, we'd do the same thing," Strogon said. "We can't turn our noses up at what they do, because we'd have done it, too."

Elkins, seeing the most action of his brief college career, said he was prepared to take the wheel when he saw Kubiak go down. The sophomore from Baytown finished the day completing six of 23 passes for 76 yards and one interception.

"They asked me if I was watching when he got hurt," Elkins said. "I saw him get tackled and when he didn't get up, I said 'Oh, no' to myself. By that time, everyone was yelling 'Elkins, get ready,' so I had to go in."

"I've got to prepare myself mentally as if I'm the starter, because you never know when you're going to have to come in."

Elkins said the Mustangs played up to their reputation and national ranking.

"I thought their defense was exceptionally quick and strong up front with (nose guard Michael) Carter," he said. "I'd say they had the best defense we've faced this year."

"Dickerson and James are supposed to be two of the best running backs around, and they played like Heisman Trophy candidates out there. I thought the defense did great. If we could have gotten something started on offense, it might have been a closer game."

CIVIL ENGINEERS...

You're Needed All Over the World.

Ask Peace Corps volunteers with degrees in Civil Engineering why they travel half way around the globe to Africa and Asia... why they work with water, sanitation, road construction, and structural projects overseas. They'll probably say they want to help people, use their skills, learn a new language, and gain valuable career experience. Ask them why Peace Corps is the toughest job you'll ever love.
