Fair pulls a profit despite problems

United Press International
KNOXVILLE, Tenn. — The 1982 World's Fair ended its six-month run Sunday with 11,127,786 visitors recorded, and its organizers celebrated with a sparkle of fireworks and a champagne toast to the "scruffy little city" that hosted it.

The fair ended in the black, causing officials to declare it a financial success.

"These mountain folks should be proud because we have been able to do what most people said we couldn't do — to have a successful World's Fair," Jake Butcher, the millionaire Knoxville banker who helped arrange federal financing, said at a final ceremony Sunday night.

"I'd like to take a couple of (champagne) bottles and pour them over the heads of the people who said we couldn't do it," Butcher said.

Fair officials had hoped to attract 11 million people and were 127,786 over that figure, exceeding the totals of the 1975 fair in Spokane, Wash., and the 1962 exposition in Seattle.

Promoters made the last payment on loans for the $115 million extravaganza three weeks ago, and fair president S.H. "Bo" Roberts said the event will end up with a profit, although he declined to say how big.

The going was rough for the fair in the beginning. Citizens were refused a referendum and were upset. Loans were hard to come by, corporations were hard to attract, and the fair went broke.

As many as several hundred residents of Knoxville were evicted from their apartments by landlords so the dwellings could be rented out to tourists.

Thousands of tourists lost money through the fair's system, which has sparked numerous lawsuits that will take months to settle.

The fate of the $20.8 million U.S. Pavilion, a six-story permanent structure that the government has no use for, is left hanging as the World's Fair ends. Officials say it may have to be sold.

Big steel makers founder

United Press International
PITTSBURGH — Massive third-quarter losses recorded by the nation's largest steel companies will get worse and imports will grow until they grab up to 30 percent of the U.S. market, analysts predict.

"None of the majors are in trouble," said Charles Bradford, vice president of Merrill Lynch, Pierce Fenner & Smith, Inc. "But if we have another year as bad as this one, with just 40 percent capacity, a couple of them might not make it."

He said imports now take only about 20 percent of the U.S. market, and that steel makers will have to cut production even more to survive.

The country's eight major steel firms swam in red ink from July through September.

U.S. Steel Corp. lost $82.4 million; Bethlehem Steel Corp., $208.9 million; Republic Steel Corp., $74.6 million; Armco Inc., $112.6 million; National Steel Corp., $96 million; Inland Steel Corp., $45 million; Wheeling-Pittsburgh Steel Corp., $26 million.

Jones & Laughlin Steel Corp., which reports only operating results, lost $109 million.

He Restoeth My Soul

HE RESTORETH MY SOUL is the story of pain, an ordeal of testing which few men could survive.

Merrill Womach's plane crashed and 108 gallons of aviation gas exploded turning him into a human torch. His countless hours of surgery in more than 50 operations and months of hospitalization over a period of 13 years is a beautiful example of how a Christian copes with adversity and comes through as a shining example of God's love in action.

This is a film that will send you home singing.
