Graham's to sponsor dance contest

Suzie Hitchcock, choreographer for "Waltz Across Texas," a movie which opens Nov. 5 in Austin, will be at the dance contest at Graham's Central Station tonight at 9:30 p.m.

The dance contest serves as the local preliminaries for a contest to be held in Midland on Dec. 5, and is broken into categories such as the waltz, the two-step, and the western swing and/or jitterbug. The top three couples will win prizes of $100, $75 and $50 as well as the chance to go to Midland for the dance finals on Dec. 5. The grand prize in that contest is a four day/3 night vacation in Reno, Nevada.

Faculty cutting day set for Sat.

Saturday has been designated faculty bonfire cutting day. All faculty members interested in cutting for bonfire need to meet at the field behind Duncan at 9 a.m. Saturday. Auto-teller planned to ease fiscal lines

by David Johnson

Battalion Staff
Standing in line at the Richard E. Coke Building will continue to be an Aggie tradition — but there is relief in sight.

There are plans to install automatic teller machines under the walkway between the Memorial Student Center and Rudder Tower which may reduce lines at Texas A&M University's fiscal offices at Coke.

The Coke Building was built in the early 1950s when only 10,000 students attended Texas A&M. Now Texas A&M has more than 36,000 students, and the lines at the Coke Building also have grown.

However, Robert Smith, University controller of accounts, said there are no plans to expand either staff or space to handle the long lines that develop on paydays or rush periods, such as registration. Students who want to cash checks for more than $25 must cash their checks at the Coke building or at Rudder Tower.

However, the planned automatic tellers may be a solution. Smith said the contract to install the machines is being written by the University and will be presented to area banks soon. The machines will be installed when the contract is finalized.

The Texas System Board of Regents gave Texas A&M Presi-

Smith said.

But the automatic tellers won't help the large number of students and faculty who pick up financial aid, paychecks or don't have an automatic card.

Smith said a motion picture done in the cashier's office in 1981 determined that the office was busiest from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. Cashier window hours, except on paydays, were shortened those times.

The shortened hours entail all five cashiers to stay open except during their lunch break and gave them more time to balance their books and complete their daily paperwork after closed in the afternoon, Smith says.

On paydays and at busy times of the semester, such as registration, cashiers' windows are open from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m.

Smith said that these were the most efficient changes since neither the Coke building nor Rudder Tower had room for more cashiers to ease the lines during peak hours.

... Relief could be in sight for students who cash checks at the Coke building when automatic teller machines are installed under the walkway between the Memorial Student Center and Rudder Tower.

dent Dr. Frank E. Vandiver the authority to negotiate a contract for the machines. The machines will be part of the MPACT or Pulse automatic teller machine networks, since most students, faculty and staff use institutions that are part of those networks, Smith says.

"The line over there may be twice as long as the line over here (at the Coke building),"

Lecturer to examine corporate life faults

A former assistant professor at Yale University and current division manager of labor relations for Bell Telephone of Pennsylvania will speak on racism and sexism in corporate life tonight at 8 in Rudder Theater.

In his book "Racism and Sexism In Corporate Life: Changing Values in American Business" published in 1981, Dr. John Fernandez examined the complexities and problems within the corporate structure. His book includes an analysis of values systems and attitudes which flow through the corporate structure.

His analysis includes stereotypical attitudes about blacks and women and attitudes which keep certain white males from making it to the top of the corporate ladder.

The lecture is sponsored by MSC Black Awareness.

Tickets are available in the MSC Box Office. Admission: 50 cents for students and $1 for non-students.

United Press International
NEW YORK — Women are victimized more often than men in confidence games and swindles, says the president of the National Association of Consumer Agency administrators.

An article in the November issue of Ladies' Home Journal quotes Clair Villano as saying, "Women have a tendency to want to be thought of as pleasant and polite. Many of us don't want to be considered tough customers."

Villano and other consumer fraud specialists say women tend to be duped by con artists because they are inclined to assume the best about people and often look for bargains. Ways to stretch tight budgets. These needs play into the hands of scam artists.
