

Vietnam veterans get memorial salute

United Press International
WASHINGTON — Having endured a decade of silence for their role in Vietnam, the forgotten veterans of America's most unpopular war began receiving their belated welcome home Wednesday.

The five-day National Salute to Vietnam Veterans, which will include a parade, concerts, and reunions, also is an attempted reconciliation between the nation and those it sent to war. An estimated 250,000 people are expected to attend the affair.

about the same number who marched on Washington a decade ago, protesting the war, chanting, "Hell no, we won't go."

At a 56-hour candlelight vigil, which began Wednesday, the names of the 57,939 Americans killed and missing in the jungles of Southeast Asia were to be read aloud at the National Cathedral.

Also Wednesday, a wooden fence surrounding the new Vietnam Veterans Memorial, which is a black granite wall inscribed with the names of the dead and missing, will be removed opening the monument to the public.

Following a parade by 15,000 veterans down Constitution Avenue Saturday, the memorial will be dedicated as the centerpiece of the salute.

President Reagan and his wife Nancy are honorary chairman and chairwoman of the salute, but aides said they do not intend to participate publicly. Aides suggested security was the reason.

Veterans groups also hope the salute will focus a national spotlight on the economic, physical and psychological problems of the Vietnam vet and begin a drive to resolve them. They are particularly interested in increased research of Agent Orange, the widely used defoliant many veterans now fear could give them cancer. They are also interested in improved health services from the Veterans Administration.

Robert Ptachic, who left the war zone in March 1967 with shrapnel in his back, is coming to Washington from New York to join the salute he believes veterans deserve.

Pulitzer accusations fly

United Press International
WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. — Testimony in the divorce trial of publishing heir Peter Pulitzer and his wife Roxanne ended sensationally with a surprise witness saying he saw Mrs. Pulitzer in bed with wealthy socialite Jacqueline Kimberly.

heard final arguments Tuesday, then packed up his copious notes and took them off on vacation to mull over what has been an emotionally bitter courtroom battle leaving little to the imagination.

Harper has heard accusations of drug abuse, bizarre sex, incest, adultery, occultism and lesbianism, all apparently intended to sway his decision as to which Pulitzer should retain custody of the couple's twin sons, 5.

Also at stake is the Pulitzer fortune, pegged at $25 million by Mrs. Pulitzer, but estimated at one tenth that amount by her husband.

In the final day of testimony, lawyers for Pulitzer, 52, called a surprise witness who testified he saw Mrs. Pulitzer, 31, lying in bed with Kimberly, 32.

The charge of lesbianism had been leveled at Mrs. Pulitzer early in the trial by her husband, but she and Kimberly both vehemently denied it.

However, Steve Anderson, a former mate on Pulitzer's yacht "The Sea Hunter," testified he saw the two women in bed.

Anderson said he entered the Pulitzer mansion in the spring of 1979 to make a phone call. He did not knock, a practice common among Pulitzer employees, and once inside saw two women in bed together in a first-floor bedroom, he testified.

Anderson said he then noticed "Roxanne Pulitzer in a very sheer nightgown. She asked what I was doing. I said I was going to make a phone call and left."

The other woman, naked, was Kimberly, he said.

Kimberly's husband, Kleiner, her James Kimberly, 76, rebutted the charge. He testified he and his wife traveled out of Palm Beach to six cities in the spring of 1979 and did not return to Palm Beach until mid-May.

Pulitzer and his wife were both called back to the stand before the end of the day.

Pulitzer again denied his wife's charge he once had a sexual relationship with Liza Leido, a daughter from his first marriage, saying if his wife "had a conscience, I don't know how she can live with that the rest of her life."
