

Strikers must take offer or lose jobs

United Press International
BEAUMONT—Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers union members who have been on strike at American Petrofina's Port Arthur refinery since January were faced with taking the company's final contract offer Monday or being replaced.

Fina planned to begin hiring replacements for the 400 strikers Monday, but spokesman Gary Bruner said the company would rather have the strikers than new employees.

contract offer made by the company earlier this month. Strikers were sent registered letters Friday with details of the non-union offer, but Fina also plans to run help-wanted ads in area newspapers and set up an employment office in Beaumont, Bruner said. Up to 250 to 300 people will be hired as "permanent replacements" if striking workers do not go back to work, he said.

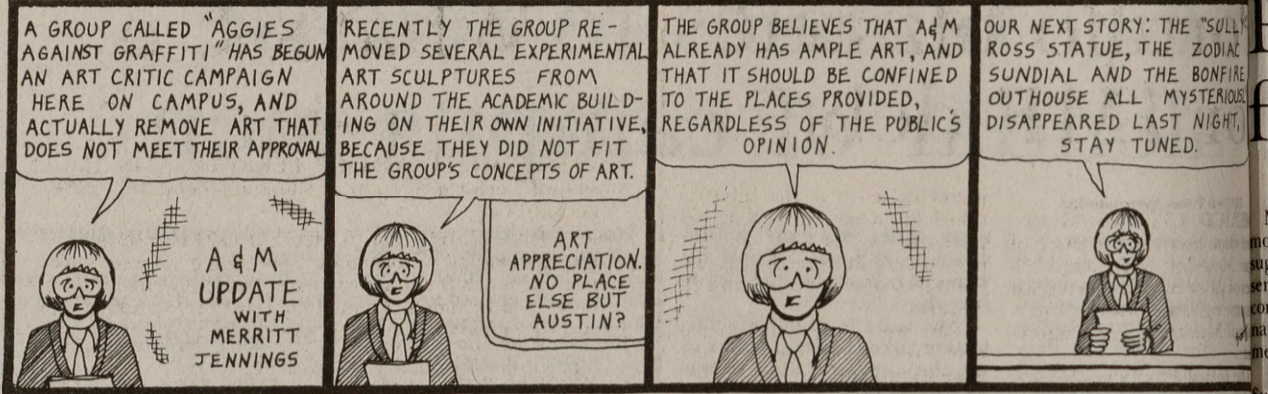

OCAW Fina spokesman Doug Dubose predicted most union members would not cross picket lines. "This will probably strengthen our group. They can see what Fina's trying to do. They know it's a move to break the union," Dubose said. Bruner said "several" OCAW members are now working at the plant. One working OCAW member, William Hinote, 51, was shot four times as he left his Port Neches home to go to work Oct. 2. Hinote is recovering from his wounds. The issue keeping the union and company from reaching a settlement is a plan to lay off about 90 employees and a Fina plan that would change the way workers are picked.

Bruner called the company's plans a move to streamline the operation. Dubose called the company's plans "an assault on the seniority system." The refinery has remained in operation during the strike, being operated by the 190 plant supervisors, Bruner said.

Charged with kidnapping

Abortion fighters caught

United Press International
SPRINGFIELD, Ill. — Three anti-abortion crusaders from Texas known as the "Army of God" are charged with federal extortion in the abduction of an abortion clinic founder and his wife, the FBI said.

Two suspects were arrested Sunday and faced hearings Monday, FBI agent Joseph E. Ondrula said. But Don B. Anderson, 42, of Pearland, is at large and considered armed and extremely dangerous.

Wayne A. Moore, 18, of New Caney, was arrested at a friend's house early Sunday, Ondrula said, and held in lieu of $1 million bond. He faced a hearing Monday in federal court in Springfield.

His brother, Matthew M. Moore, 20, of New Caney, was arrested late Sunday in Alvin, Ondrula said. He is being held in the Harris County Rehabilitation Center in Houston in lieu of a $1 million cash bond. He was to appear Monday before a U.S. magistrate in Houston.

The three are charged with obstructing the business of abortion clinics owned by Dr. Hector Zevallos.

Zevallos and his wife, Rosalie Jean, were kidnapped from their posh Edwardsville, Ill., home Aug. 12 and released unharmed eight days later. Zevallos, 53, operates the Hope Clinic for Women in Granite City and owns the building that houses another clinic in Shreveport, La.

The group, calling itself the "Army of God," took credit for the abduction in a ransom letter and tape-recording left at a St. Louis park. The communication listed "Epistles" discussing the group's views on abortion and the U.S. Constitution.

There was no evidence to link the three with another letter from the "Army of God" claiming the group had burned two Florida abortion clinics. That letter was delivered to a television station in Tampa last May.

U.S. Attorney Frederick Hess said money also was a motive but declined to reveal the amount the trio had sought.

Ondrula said a tip from a citizen last month led the FBI to the men, who he described as "transients."

Moore was arrested just 20 miles from the concrete and steel bunkers in which the Zevalloses were held during the abduction. The bunkers, in a desolate field near Illiopolis, had been used to store ammunition during World War II.

Anderson, who was last seen in Springfield a few days ago, also is wanted in Texas on felony charges, the FBI said. Anderson was said to be about 6 feet 9 inches tall, weighing 150 pounds, with brown hair and blue eyes.

If convicted of both crimes, the men could face a maximum penalty of 30 years in jail and a $15,000 fine.
