play against the Houston Cougars in Hofheinz Pavilion Jan. 4... The Arkansas Razorbacks will be in town Jan. 13 to play the Aggies in G. Rollie White Coliseum. Mark your calendar if you plan to see the game.

Lisa Johnson, a junior on the Texas A&M women's volleyball team, has been named to the second team academic all-America team. Johnson, a native of Farmers Branch, has been a three-year starter for the Aggies, and carries a 4.0 grade point average as a business administration major. She is also a President's Endowed Scholar and a National Merit Scholar Finalist... The men's basketball team won't be the only Aggies playing over the Christmas break. The Aggie Ladies will travel to Las Vegas, Nev., to play Idaho State and University of Nevada at Las Vegas Saturday and Sunday. The Ladies begin SWC play against UH on Jan. 4 also. Both the men's and women's teams have a full slate of conference games over the holidays.

Cowboys roll into Dome for war with Houston

United Press International
HOUSTON — On Nov. 20, 1966 — in Pittsburgh of all places — the Dallas Cowboys assured themselves of their first winning season ever.
Tonight, in the Astrodome, the Cowboys will try to clinch their 17th consecutive winning year — something no other team in the history of pro football has achieved.
The Cowboys, rolling toward their 16th playoff appearance over that 17-year stretch, take on the struggling Houston Oilers in a rare regular season meeting of the clubs that were born the same year and have fought ever since to be "Texas' Team."
"Organizations win," said Houston coach Ed Biles, whose club is 1-4 and probably must win its remaining four games if it has any hope of making it into the expanded playoffs. "And frankly we are striving to get ours into that type of situation."

"To beat Dallas we are going to have to play the best possible game than we can."
Dallas is 4-1 and going into this weekend's round of games was one of only three NFL teams to have won all of its post-strike contests.
Houston, meanwhile, is returning home after two dismal weeks on the road. The Oilers were an easy victim against New England two weeks ago and last weekend they gave up two late touchdowns to the New York Giants and lost a game they seemed certain to win.

"This is a surprising... said Biles. "They have been expected to bounce back after a defeat. You can't expect a team that is 1-4 to be sky high. But morale is better than expected considering the circumstances."
Although the Oilers and Cowboys meet in the exhibition game every year, this will be the fourth time they have played a game that counts. And it is the first trip to the Astrodome since Dallas in eight years.
Their last meeting was Thanksgiving Day three years ago when Earl Campbell rushed for 195 yards on 33 carries, the second best rushing performance ever against the Cowboys. This year, however, Campbell is not his old self. With a blocking, Campbell has maybe two aged less than four yards per carry.
"I think Earl is going through an adjustment period," Biles. "We are changing attack from a one-dimensional to a multi-dimensional attack. Earl's role is to do the best for the football team."
