

Business Week begins today

Representatives of more than 50 corporations from across the country will be here today when the College of Business Administration kicks off its annual Career Fair today.

Exxon, Gulf, several large public accounting firms, Pennzoil, Tenneco, Luby's Cafeterias, H.E.B. Grocery Stores, Safeway Groceries, ARCO, Marathon Oil, AT&T, Harper & Pearson and West Texas Utilities are among the regulars to return this year for the event, which gives students a chance to learn about life after college.

The two-day fair features 55 firms with exhibits in the first and second-floor foyers of the Academic and Agency Building.

Hundreds of company officials will be on hand to answer students' questions.

Career Fair is part of Business Week '83 activities, sponsored each year by the College of Business. Events include a series of presentations by visiting executives who bring a sense of the real world into the classroom. The fair gives students a chance to seek advice about the job market and how to succeed in getting a job.

Classroom discussion topics will include how much "computerese" students should know when they graduate, how to cope with stress, the future of women in business and changing values in the business world.

MARK OF A LEADER

Caxton's moveable type completely changed English society.

In 1475, when William Caxton printed the first English book, he started a quiet revolution. A free flow of ideas makes constant change inevitable.

Northern Telecom started its own quiet revolution, one that's also radically changing the way ideas are communicated. We were the first company to design and produce a full line of digital switching systems, the telecommunications technology that transmits both voice and data with digital signals.

Our success convinced many skeptics that digital communications was truly the wave of the future. As private and public digital networks grow, an international web of integrated voice and data communication is gradually being created. Instantaneous access to global data banks is becoming a reality.

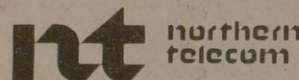

Today Northern Telecom is a world leader in digital switching systems, in related technologies — fiber optics, large-scale integrated circuits — and in electronic office systems.

By merging computers and telecommunications, Northern Telecom is changing the way the world communicates.

What we've accomplished so far is only the beginning. We're looking for imaginative, talented people to be a part of our growth. If you want a career that combines stability, creativity, and limitless opportunity, we'd like to talk with you.

You can make your mark in the Intelligent Universe.

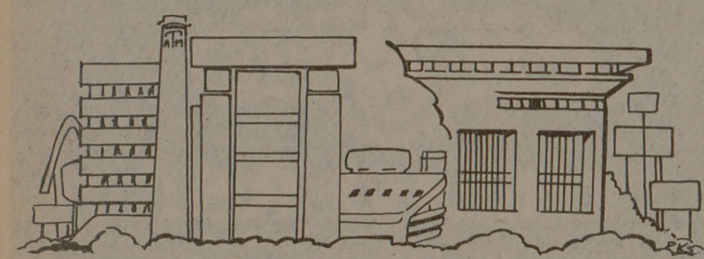

See your placement office to schedule an interview with one of our Division Representatives from either Network Systems or Business Communications/Dallas, on campus February 14.

Students campaign for campus votes

by Kelley Smith
Battalion Reporter
Election campaigning is underway for a representative from the 6th Congressional District, and Texas A&M students are leading the campaign on campus.

Aggies for Gramm held an organizational meeting Tuesday, which about 60 students attended. Co-chairmen of Aggies for Gramm are Pat Pearson, student body president, and Doug Jones, president of the College Republicans.

Activities such as literature drops both on- and off-campus, office help for campaign headquarters and phone calls to voters were planned at the meeting. An airport rally also was planned for Phil Gramm on Feb. 11.

"There are 60 to 70 students helping (in the Gramm campaign headquarters) from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. — about 15 everyday — but we are picking up more," said Debbie Messick, a non-student volunteer coordinator for Gramm.

There are about 100 students working with Aggies for Gramm.

Gramm is planning to be on campus before the election. He will be walking around the campus Tuesday morning to talk with students and answer questions.

He will begin his two hour and 15 minute walk at 9:15 at the Academic and Agency Building. He will walk to Rudder Tower, the Corps of Cadet Quadrangle and Duncan Hall.

While there are some organizations like Aggies for Gramm backing a candidate, several students have been involved independently.

Sandra Taylor, a non-student volunteer with the John Faulk campaign, said the student volunteers are responsible for organizing the campaign but that students have become too involved.

"We're holding off until in students until we get organized so we can best take advantage of their time," she said.

One of the student volunteers in the Faulk campaign is Pender, a senior marketing major. Pender is responsible for showing media representatives around the campaign office.

Jennifer Fulcher, a sociology major, has been organizing with the Dan Kubiak campaign for three weeks. She has been organizing press releases and making campaign signs.

"It's hard to put in the time with school, but it's interesting and you meet a lot of people," she said.

The Young Democrats group's president, Jack

They will set up tables in the Memorial Student Center to distribute literature, he said.

MSC Political Forum will bring Kubiak to campus Feb.
