Blankfeld said many clients begin making additions to their home and selecting new furniture before the surrogate's preganancy has been confirmed.

"I feel like I'm going to be able to give the gift of life to someone," Susan said. "Nobody else is going to do that for these people."

And motherhood so agrees with Susan that she plans to have two or three more children for the same couple

Susan was a dental hygienist before she became a profession-al mother. She first considered the idea of becoming a surrogate child bearer after watching a television program dealing with the subject. Her husband, a laboratory technician, supports her deci-sion, but did not encourage it.

"It's one thing to ask her to have a child for us," he said, "but to say, 'Hey, could you have a child for someone else?' That's nothing I should ask. That's something she should decide on

Like the center's other surrogate mothers, Susan contacted Blankfeld, who says she solicits neither surrogates nor childless couples, but has been over-whelmed with calls from couples and from women seeking to be
