Now you know Dallas loan specialist jailed on bribe charges

United Press International BEAUMONT — Federal officials are locking up some downtown post office lobbies at night to keep vagrants from making the public building their homes. General Services Administration spokesman Ken Marshall in Fort Worth said "derelicts, winos, and other undesirables" have set fires in the buildings. Because of budget cuts, federal security police officers were laid off, Marshall said, and the vagrants began sleeping in the lobbies. Pat Ortego, GSA superintendent at the post office building in downtown Beaumont, said empty and broken wine bottles were found in the lobby and the marble staircases were being used as bathrooms. In Texarkana, the uninvited guests set a bonfire, using Internal Revenue Service tax forms and other federal literature.

United Press International DALLAS — More arrests may result from the investigation of Small Business Administration loan specialist Lonnie Ray Toole, who is in jail in the Rio Grande Valley on charges of accepting a bribe. Toole, a member of the SBA's Grand Prairie office, will be arraigned later today in Brownsville before a federal magistrate. The FBI said Toole, 42, accepted a bribe from the new owner of a food-processing plant in Monte Alto, a small community in the Rio Grande Valley. He was arrested moments after the bribe was delivered. The Dallas Morning News today quoted a government source as saying federal authorities do not consider the Toole case to be an "isolated incident," and that more arrests may follow concerning questionable SBA loan activities. FBI agents arrested Toole Sunday in a Brownsville motel after he accepted a $200,000 bribe. The sum was supposed to ensure the transfer of a disaster loan from the former owners of the plant to its new owner. The disaster loan was to be secured by the original owners for damages resulting from Hurricane Allen in September, 1980. The government source said federal officials had been investigating the case for a year. Although he declined to be specific, he said that other officials in Dallas, and other places, have been implicated. Toole is being held without bond at the Cameron County Jail in Brownsville.
