Tougher DWI laws proposed

United Press International AUSTIN — Legislation aimed at toughening Texas' drunken driving laws has drawn both the public support and the controversy expected, with scores showing up to testify be-fore a state Senate committee considering proposed laws.

Those testifying before the Senate State Affairs Committee Monday ranged from a young girl injured by a drunken hit-and-run driver to state Com-ptroller Bob Bullock, a recovered alcoholic.

The committee, after several hours of testimony, referred six bills to a subcommittee for consolidation. Three of the bills constitute a drunken driving package sponsored by Sen. Bill Sarpalius, D-Amarillo.

One bill by Sarpalius, requiring a Department of Public Safety identification card instead of a Texas driver's license as proof of age for buying alcoholic beverages, was approved and sent to the full Senate.

Before delaying action on the main DWI measures, the sena-tors heard Lora Lee Ward, an Austin teenager, implore them to do something to stop drunken drivers like the one who hit her two months ago, leaving her on crutches and temporarily disabled.

"As I see it now, I'm the one paying for his mistake," she said.

to a DWI charge in 1978 and went through a California rehabilitation program for treatment of his alcoholism in 1981, said he could not "wholeheartedly" support the legislation.

He urged the senators to adopt legislation addressing alcoholism as a disease that needs treatment before it becomes a criminal legal issue. One bill in the Sarpalius DWI package would raise fees for alcoholic beverage licenses, with the estimated $23 million in annual revenues dedicated to alcoholism rehabilitation prog-rams for DWI offenders. Bul-lock said the money should come from the general revenue fund, with problem drinking receiving the same emphasis from legislators as other health problems.

"It's a disease," Bullock said.

But in Texas I'm just a drunk.' However, most opposition to the Sarpalius package centered on his proposal to do away with deferred adjudication for DWI offenders. Under the procedure, a DWI conviction can be set aside if the offender success-

We must eliminate deferred adjudication," Sarpalius said. "People have had as many as 20 DWIs and never gone to jail. We must have a surety of punish-

However, a bill sponsored by Sen. Tati Santiesteban, D-El Paso, would maintain current law, which allows deferred adjudication where applicable in Santiesteban and several criminal defense attorneys argued for the retention of deferred adjudication as an effective, unappealable prosecution tool.

"If you do away with deferred adjudication, you'll be doing a great disservice," said Austin defense attorney Roy Minton. "You all aren't going to pass anything that's going to do anything anyway, so don't worry yourselves sick about it."

But Public Safety Director Col. Jim Adams told the lawmakers that only 17 percent of the 43,000 people arrested for drunken driving in the state in 1981 lost their driver's licenses or went to jail.

"There's nothing but an empty threat," he said.

Mattox OKs health spa bill

AUSTIN - A bill to regulate could not meet the health spas more stringently, such as prohibiting collection of membership fees before they open for business, won support from Attorney General Jim Mattox, himself the victim of disreputable operators.

The bill by Sen. Lindon Williams, D-Houston, would ban lifetime memberships or mem-berships longer than one year. Mattox told the Senate Health and Human Resources

Committee Monday that lifetime memberships are misleading because the customer believes he is getting a substantial bargain when, in fact, the spa cannot possibly deliver what has been promised over a long period of time. "I've been cheated on two life memberships in health spas myself because the spas I joined
