Rules for posting flyers often ignored

by Larry C. Couvillon

Battalion Reporter
The chairman of the Advertising and Publicity Committee says organizations not recognized by Texas A&M are using University bulletin boards for advertising.

"These areas are becoming swamped with flyers and posters," chairman Dave Bergen said.

Only recognized campus organizations, University offices, governmental or educational agencies, and students, faculty and staff who advertise personal items are permitted to use posting areas, Bergen said.

The following guidelines must be followed to legally post notices on bulletin boards, he said.

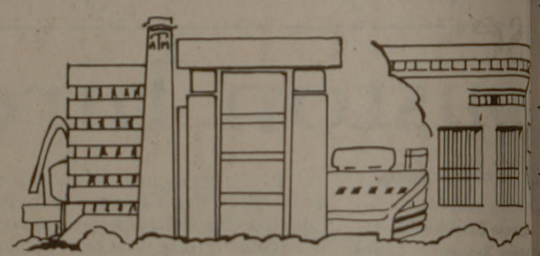

First, no advertisement can be larger than 22 inches by 28 inches, and only one flyer per event can be displayed on a bulletin board. The name of the organization must appear on the poster along with an expiration date.

Second, tacks and masking tape must be used to attach materials to cork bulletin boards and masking tape for other designated posting areas.

Material should not overlap other advertising, and it's not acceptable to post material on glass surfaces, walls, doors, vending machines, trash cans, cars, trees, light posts or sidewalks. Chalking sidewalks also is prohibited.

Third, after the advertisement has expired, it is the responsibility of the organization to remove its posters.

Bergen said any campus organization that doesn't follow the rules of advertising may be subject to loss of posting rights or possible loss of University recognition.

Space photography topic of special

MSC Great Issues will present Richard W. Underwood of the will discuss "A Voyage through the Galaxy." Underwood will be speaking tonight at 8 p.m. in Rudder Theater. The program is free of charge.

Underwood graduated with his Bachelor of Science in Geology from the University of Connecticut. In 1968, he began working with the Johnson Space Center.

While working for NASA, Underwood worked on a number of graphic projects on programs such as the Gemini and Apollo lunar missions. He also helped develop the High Resolution Photographic Laboratory which processed films from Skylab, Apollo-Soyuz, and Earth Resources Program. Underwood currently works as Technical Assistant to the Chief of the Graphic Technology Division of NASA where he works with photographic sciences and photogrammetric systems of several NASA staff elements.

His work has won him such awards as the Forster Award of American Society of Photogrammetry and the President's Award for the Institute for Incorporated Photographers.

Candidate meetings set for this

The League of Women Voters is sponsoring candidate meetings all this week to give Brazos Valley citizens an opportunity to question their candidates.

On Tuesday, College Station candidates for city council and school board will speak and answer questions at the College Station Community Center, Room 106.

Bryan candidates for mayor, city council and school board are invited to a forum on Friday at the Brazos Valley Community Center. Both meetings will start at 7:30 p.m. are free of charge and open to the public.

Ford official to speak tomorrow

Benson J. Lamp, a business planning manager for Tractor Operations in Troy, Mich., will speak on agricultural mechanization Tuesday at 3:30 p.m. in Room 217, Scoates Hall.

Lamp is among several distinguished lecturers sponsored by Texas A&M's Agricultural Engineering Department. During his two-day visit to campus, he will teach agricultural engineering classes, special sessions with members, and will speak to the general session of the Agricultural Extension Service Headquarters Staff Conference.

His address is open to the public.

If you have an announcement or item to submit for a column, come by The Battalion office in 216 Reed Hall or call Tracey Taylor at 845-2665.

Tower lauds defense budget

United Press International
HOUSTON — U.S. Senator John Tower, in ceremonies marking the visit of the nuclear submarine USS Houston to its namesake city, Saturday called on Texans to support President Reagan's defense spending plan.

Tower, R-Texas, told local officials and a crowd gathered to view the attack submarine that Texans benefit directly from increased defense spending.

"Defense spending is a spur to economic recovery. Every $1 billion of defense spending will create about 35,000 jobs. In Texas alone in 1982, $7.9 billion of defense contracts were assigned to Texas," Tower said. "In just the last few years, $671 million was spent in 1981, $855 million in 1982, and almost $200 million more this year." Tower said the nuclear submarine Houston to its namesake city gives people an opportunity to see close up where their dollars are going.

Tower, chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, urged constituents to contact Congress to preserve the proposed budget for defense. He said a reduction in defense spending would threaten the country's security.
