national Computers, United Press International STANFORD, Calif. — Robots and computers could eliminate as many as three million skilled jobs in the next 20 years which

by Scott McCullar

robots are in future

jobs in the next 20 years which would make janitors and fastfood workers seven times more in demand than computer analysts, Stanford University researchers say.

"Entire classes of skilled workers will disappear or will be severely reduced in numbers as "Entire classes of skilled million operative positions — currently 8 percent of the work force — by the year 2025."

their jobs are replaced by robots or computer software," Professor Henry M. Levine said Tuesday in a report on the impact of high technology.

"For example, robots could replace up to three million oper-ative jobs in the next 20 years and potentially eliminate all 8

... AND THAT ONE AND THAT ONE AND THAT ONE, AND THAT STACK OF NEW ONES THERE, AND THAT WHOLE BOX THERE (THIS MAN'S GONN'A KILL ME...) (PUFF, PUFF) IENE FICTION WEEK THAT ? AN ISAAC ASIMOV BOOK COLLECTOR. TWO NEW ONES CO (PUFF, PUFF) I'LL TAKE THOSE 5 NEW BOOKS THERE

ung cancer deaths up

Women smokers increase

nited Press International I DIEGO — Lung cancer rpass breast cancer as the cause of cancer death American women within ears and scientists are increased cigarette

Varped

he deadly epidemic could been prevented if it were cigarette smoking," Dr. a Ernster of the Universi-California School of Medi-San Francisco told scienters at an annual Amer-Cancer Society seminar women continue to smoke do now, female lung caneaths will surpass those n breast cancer during the eaths will surpass those next three to four years, and lung cancer then will become the leading cause of cancer death cancer between lung and capable of becoming president," she said.

Aware of the trends, the cancer death ca among women as well as men," said Cancer Society President Willis Taylor.

National surveys show a slow decline in smoking among American women — from a peak of 33 percent of all women in the 1950s and 1960s to 28 per-in the 2000s and 1960s to 28 per-in the 2000s and 1960s to 28 percent in 1979, Ernster said.

But because smoking among men has decreased much more, from 50 percent to 37 percent, the gap between the sexes continues to close with women expected to catch up soon, she tobacco industry has targeted women in its $1.4 billion annual advertising campaign, Ernster said. This year, $73 million has

Up to 15 percent of total advertising revenues for most of the major American women's magazines came from cigarette promotions in 1981, Ernster

"The women in cigarette In women 17-18 years old, the ideal — glamorous, exciting habit increased from 18.6 per- with good jobs, mellow, hard-report also quotes from the tobacco industry's list of strategies on how to lure young people to the cigarette habit.

"The ads and promotional campaigns geared toward women have become increasingly aggressive, including more use of free-pack coupons featuring women models and sponsorship by cigarette interests of fashion shows and professional women's tennis.

Ernster recommended a ban on cigarette advertising and inadvertisements are portrayed as creased warning on cigarette packages alerting users to all possible dangers.

CANDIDATES for CLASS AGENT

If you are interested in serving the Class of '83 as Class Agent(s), please come by the office of The Association of Former Students. Information about duties and responsibilities will be available.

Also, details about the election which will be held during the Senior Banquets.

Forsyth Alumni Center 845-7514

