

campus that is not seen in other colleges. My motive is simple, yet it is sincere and I am sure it is one every Aggie can understand.

Some candidates in the upcoming election will promise to uphold pride and tradition here at A&M while at the same time promising to represent A&M in the best manner possible. Other candidates will run as "non-regs," claiming that they deserve the position because the non-reg population has a right to a yell leader of its own. These differing platforms are going to cause friction, and an Aggie "civil war" is entirely possible.

If elected, my goal would be to solve this problem. I feel that a yell leader should be selected not as a non-reg or as

Terry Hlavinka

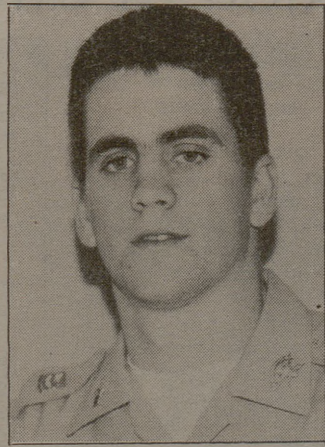

*agriculture economics
East Bernard*

Since becoming a student here almost two years ago, I have involved myself in several aspects of college life. I was elected freshman president for Puryear Hall. After joining the Corps of Cadets my first semester, I have broadened the skills that I feel are necessary to obtain my goal as yell leader. Also, my involvement in the MSC Hospitality Committee has given me the opportunity to communicate and work with students from all phases of life at Texas A&M.

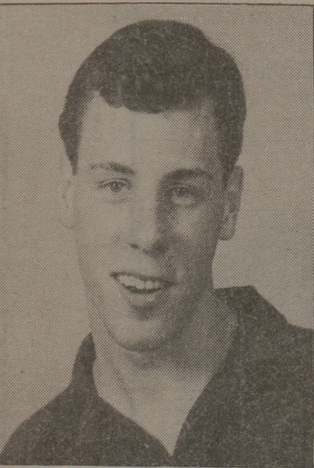

I desire the position of junior yell leader because I sincerely want to work with all Aggies. Obtaining the position of yell leader, a lifelong dream of mine, would enable me to share this enthusiasm for Texas A&M with those that I could not reach otherwise.

If elected, I would be responsible for the actions of the yell leaders as well as the entire student body. I commend our present yell leaders for an outstanding job. One of their goals was to remove some of the grode from yell practices while leaving the humor and tradition intact. I will support the continuation of this goal. Another of my objectives is to unite the student body as never before. To effectively do this, the communication lines must be left open between civilians and cadets. My greatest desire is to work with all Aggies, and given the opportunity to be junior yell leader, I will devote myself to representing the entire student body the best I possibly can.

Russell McCaskill

marketing Arlington

I am active in Town Hall, RHA Casino, Reveliers, Class of '85 and intramural sports. I am an intramural referee, ACU-I representative and intramural coach and captain.

With my dad and brother being Aggies, I have grown up in a home where Aggie traditions are very important. Since I experienced my first A&M football game at an early age, I always have had a long-range goal of being a yell leader.

Now that this goal is nearing, my perspective has changed. I not only want to be a yell leader for the excitement, but want to represent A&M and the fine things for which it stands. I feel that I have a dynamic personality that is characteristic of a yell leader. I want to give back to A&M a small portion of what it has given to me. As a yell leader, I will be able to share with many people this great

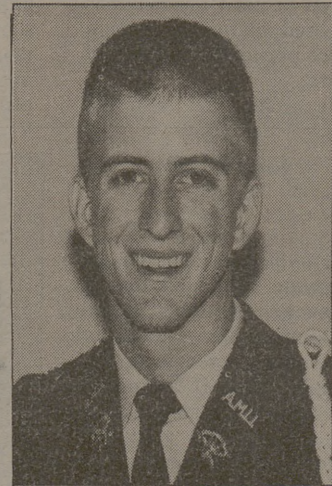

Darrell Pickard

*psychology
San Antonio*

My involvement in student activities over the last two years has enabled me to gain valuable leadership experience. As a freshman, I served as a Student Government freshman aide and was an active member of MSC Hospitality and the Traditions Council. I coordinated the Parents' Weekend traditions program and received the Buck Weirus Spirit Award. As a sophomore, I represented the Corps on Traditions Council and coordinated the Parents' Weekend traditions program. Because of this experience, I feel qualified to run for this position.

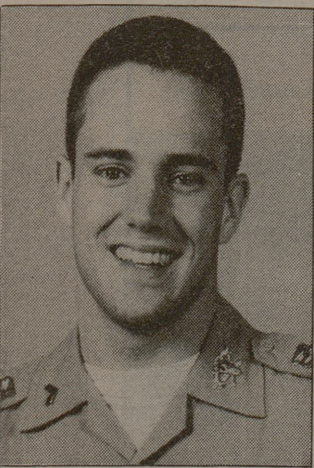

Spirit, unity and brotherhood are only a few words that help mold an Aggie. These and other characteristics are what have made Aggies proud. And they will make future Aggies proud.

These Aggies make up the Twelfth Man. The yell leader is responsible for keeping and building these characteristics.

As a yell leader, I would put every ounce of effort into preserving and protecting these ideals while representing the student body with honor and pride.

If elected, my main goal would be to increase the unity of the Twelfth Man. The more unified the student body, the more the "spirit" will grow. It is only through unity that there is strength.

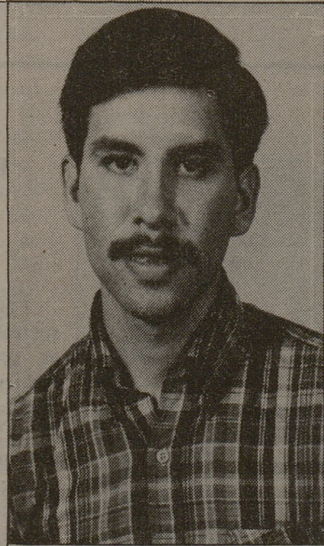

Frank Reister

*agricultural economics
El Paso*

My leadership ability has been given the chance to develop through my involvement in church and other Christian organizations. I had the opportunity to lead Bible studies, work as a summer missionary and coordinate missions. Other leadership experience comes from being a cadet at the United States Military Academy, West Point. And I have learned to be a follower, which is probably the most important prerequisite to being a leader.

To be a good leader, I believe you need to be willing to serve your followers. I am proud to be an Aggie and I would like the opportunity to serve the Twelfth Man through the position of junior yell leader.

My goals as yell leader

Gregory W. Simank

mechanical engineer Houston

In high school I was in student government, JETS, National Honor Society, Bearkeeper (mascot) and worked in the principal's office. In college I am a sophomore member of Squadron 4. I'm also active in the Traditions Council and a member of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers. I'm active in the Baptist Student Union; I am one of three who are conducting children's Bible study every Tuesday.

I want to become more active in college and I like to be with people.

If elected, I will try to bring more people to the sporting games here at Texas A&M. Another goal is to make all the Aggies that go to the games whoop and "hump it" with the yell leaders.

Photo not available

Aggie feels for his fellow Aggies. To lose that feeling is to lose what makes Texas A&M great. Informing and supporting all students of activities along with an example of tolerance and a positive attitude will keep Aggie spirit what it is.

would be to serve Texas A&M and the Twelfth Man. I would seek to represent the Aggie Spirit and virtues that are associated with A&M. I also would seek to help inspire the Aggie spirit and pride.