Student adviser service to move to renovated third floor of YMCA

by Pamela J. Franklin
Battalion Reporter
The third floor of the YMCA building will be renovated to accommodate the new Student Counseling Service — a combination of two existing services. Wade Birch, director of Student Counseling, said he hopes the renovation will be completed by Fall 1983.

The renovation, which will cost approximately $90,000, will include knocking some walls out, moving some walls back and soundproofing all the offices, Birch said. The Student Counseling Service is made up of the former academic counseling and personal counseling services which were merged last year. The academic counselors are presently located in Room 107 of the Academic Building while the personal counselors are located in the basement of the YMCA Building.

Once the Student Counseling Service moves from the YMCA basement, the personnel office will utilize the vacated basement space. Presently part of the third floor of the YMCA Building is used by student legal advisers. The legal advisers will move to Bizzel Hall before the renovation is completed. The other part of the YMCA third floor was vacated by the Financial Aid Office earlier this semester.

Birch said the renovated third floor will be much larger than the counseling center's present accommodations. The renovated third floor will have two group rooms, a relaxation training room, a career training library, three associate director offices, one director office, one room for part-time psychiatrists, a mail room, a records room and a secretarial room. The career library will have a new computer, and new furniture will be on the third floor.

Faculty Senate to meet tonight

The Faculty Senate will meet tonight at 7 p.m. in Rudder to elect a speaker of the senate and begin work on bylaws. The speaker of the senate is the group's presiding officer and chairman of its Executive Committee. The speaker serves a one-year term of office. Candidates for the position are John McDermott, distinguished professor of philosophy and humanities and professor and head of humanities in medicine; Murray Miller, professor of agronomy; and William L. Perry, associate professor of mathematics. The meeting is open to the public.

Doherty Award winner announced

Darton A. Dennis, a 21-year-old spring graduate, was named the prestigious Doherty Award as the outstanding member of the Corps of Cadets. Dennis, a native of Cedar Falls, Iowa, also received commission as second lieutenant in the Marine Corps during commissioning ceremonies at Texas A&M. He earned a GPR in environmental design. Dennis served as operations officer for the Corps during the 1982-83 academic year. He received a number of honors while attending Texas A&M, including a Distinguished Student Award, Distinguished Graduate of the Science Institute, the American Defense Preparedness Award and the Professor of Naval Sciences Academic Excellence Award. The Doherty Award is presented each year to the cadet who is both receiving a military commission and recognized by the university as a valued and outstanding student leader. The award was established in 1971 in honor of the W.T. Doherty. Dennis is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Ervin A. Dennis of Cedar Falls.

Veterinarians to graduate Friday

Seventy-three new veterinarians will be graduated Friday night, the first springtime ceremonies since the early 1960s. Ceremonies are usually held in August. The program begins at 8 p.m. in Rudder Auditorium with commencement speaker Dr. Neville Clark, director of Texas Agricultural Experiment Station. The newest graduates of the College of Veterinary Medicine are the last of two "split classes" formed to make transition from a three-year professional program to that requires four years. Texas A&M's veterinary school is the nation's largest annually producing about 9 percent of all practitioners in the United States.

Dorms to close 6 p.m. Friday

by Susan Poole
Battalion Reporter
Students living in dorms have until 6 p.m. Friday to move out. In order to move out, students must set up a time with their resident adviser to check their rooms for damages and fill out inventory cards. Then students must clean and move everything out of their rooms. When the students return their keys they will be billed for any damages. Dara Collins, head resident adviser for Krueger Hall, said. The dorms will re-open May 29 for summer school. Following dorms will be open for summer school: Moshier, Briggs Hall, Spence Hall, Hall, Dorm 5, Dorm 7, Dorm 11, and Dorm 12. If students already have room assignments for next school, they may make arrangements with the students currently living in the room to store their belongings. This is done no later than 5 p.m. Friday, Collins said.

Local pools awarded appreciation certificate

by Scott Griffin
Battalion Staff
The Aquatics Division of the College Station Parks and Recreation Department has won the Appreciation Award from the National Water Safety Congress for two of its water safety programs. The award is a certificate that is given annually to cities which have done outstanding work in the area of water safety. Randy Schrengost, pool manager for College Station, said the city won the award for conducting an annual workshop in pool management and a proposed guard contest. "Each year we hold a statewide pool safety conference in which we instruct managers on proper pool chemistry, handling legal liability, guard training and selection of guards. This and our upcoming Texas Super Pool Guard Contest are the programs that won the award for us," he said. The guard contest will be in August and will have such as lifesaving, first aid and the use of safety equipment. Schrengost said other cities around the state already expressed interest. "We've had a really good response so far. People from as far as McAllen and Midland planning to come in, and expect entries from all areas of the state," he said. The purpose of the contest is to encourage guards around the state to stay in shape and test their saving techniques. "All I wanted was a contest to keep the guards motivated cause near the end of every summer lots of guards get bored and tend to slack off on their training. Hopefully, this contest will motivate them to sharpen their skills," he said.
