Cards rip Astros, win sixth straight

United Press International ST. LOUIS — Most of Ozzie Smith's contributions to the St. Louis Cardinals cannot be found in the hits, runs and RBI columns in the daily boxscores.

Through the Cardinals' first 29 games this season, Smith was hitting .222 with six RBI. He would like for the numbers to be higher, but he knows he doesn't collect his $1 million a year salary because he hits .300 every year or drives in 100 runs or hits

Smith is the highest paid shortstop in the history of base-ball because of the way he plays defense, but Tuesday night he gave the Cardinals a little some-

Smith had a double and single and drove in two runs and scored twice on top of his usual defensive effort to help the Cardinals extend their winning streak to six games with an 8-4 victory over the Houston Astros.

"If I'm only getting one hit a night but it's in a key situation that's OK," Smith said. "But when you hit the ball hard two or three times and have nothing to show for it, it's frustrating.

"But you can't let it affect the other parts of your game. When I'm not hitting, I try to bear down even more defensively and not give anybody else any Manager Whitey Herzog considers any offensive production from Smith, a career .234 hitter, as a bonus.

"I don't worry about it," Herzog said, "but he has really hit better than his average shows. He was hitting too many fly balls. He has to hit it on the ground to be successful." With the Cardinals leading 2-0 in the third inning, Houston starter Joe Niekro walked Ken Oberkfell and Tom Herr to load the bases and Smith followed with a two-run single to increase the lead to 4-0. Smith later scored on Lonnie Smith's two-

In the fifth, Smith doubled and scored as the Cardinals built an 8-1 lead in handing the Astros their third straight loss.

"He's more of a contact hitter," said Houston manager Bob Lillis. "When you're that type hitter, anytime you make contact you have a chance. Their whole club is that way. They have a lot of people who hit well with men in scoring position."

Smith's biggest contribution to the Cardinals lately, however, may turn out to be an unsolicited piece of advice he gave Lonnie Smith after the St. Louis leftfielder made two errors in a game, giving him seven in 27 games.

"I've really been hurting us the way I've been playing the outfield," Lonnie Smith said. "Ozzie told me my glove was closed too much, so I switched gloves. It seems to be helping. It doesn't mean anything if I'm driving in one run and giving up one or two.

Ozzie Smith said the problem with the closed glove was just something he noticed and mentioned to Lonnie

Islanders capture Cup 100 with 4-2 win over Oiler I

UNIONDALE, N.Y. — The New York Islanders, playing an almost methodical brand of hockey, dumped the Edmonton Oilers again Tuesday night 4-2 to capture the Stanley Cup in a four-game sweep.

The Islanders used a stunning three-goal first period to put away the Oilers and win their fourth straight Stanley Cup. Goals by Bryan Trottier, John Tonelli and Mike Bossy—in a 1:37 span put the Islanders ahead to stay.

New York then withstood a spirited Oiler comeback, but Ken Morrow's empty-net goal with 1:09 remaining ended Edmonton's chances.

There's a tradition that goes with the final Stanley Cup contest. All hard feelings are supposed to be forgotten and the players on the los-ing team skate down the ice and shake hands with the members of the winning team.

But Billy Smith, the Islanders' goalie and winner of the Conn Smythe Award as MVP of the Stanley Cup series, didn't bother shaking hands with the Oilers. So much for good sportsmanship. Smith couldn't care less.

Victory was particularly sweet for him Tuesday night because he felt he evened the score with Edmonton's Wayne Gretzky for an episode that occurred during the second game of the series in Edmonton last Thursday. Smith drew a five-minute major penalty in the final minutes of that contest for slashing Gretzky with his stick. The Oilers' brilliant 22-year-old center fell to the ice writhing in pain after being hit.

At 8:26 of the final period Tuesday night,
Smith got his "revenge."

Edmonton wing Glenn Anderson was skating in front of the Islanders' goal and suddenly Smith was seen writhing on the ice in apparent pain.

Time out was called while Islander trainer Ron

Waske came out on the ice to see how seriously

Smith had been injured. Roland Melanso United Islanders' backup goalie, also skated out WASH he would be needed as a replacement y, Ho Smith was rolling around on the ice most time. Anderson was roundly booed whenly assessed with a five-minute major penalty The m feree Andy Van Hellemond.

Then, after the game Smith practical intended it was a charade.

"I did the same thing Gretzky did in the game in Edmonton," the Islanders god clared. "I threw myself on my back and specific and the same three days in Canada in the same three days in the same t around. I want everybody in Canada to kin can play the same game."

When he was specifically asked if held the injury, Smith merely kept repeatinghed same thing Gretzky had done.

'I was hurt about as bad as Gretzky was the second game," Smith said. "What real pened was he (Anderson) tried to rap me my throat and hit my (shoulder) pad." Dave Lumley could scarcely hide his when he heard what Smith had to say. "If he wants to turn this series into h personal farce, that's his business," said the right wing. "I think he's a helluva good god I don't go for what he did." Anderson had even more to say about That doesn't show too much characte it?" he said about Smith's action. "We're team to go down and fake it. If we go down hurt. You can see on the replay I didn'th He pushed me away and the upper partipeake body fell back.

And if he calls Wayne a faker, he does what he's talking about. Wayne was definite in the second game. His leg stiffened w Smith hit him with his stick. But what's the crying about it now. We gave it a goods came up short. We'll be back."
