name Lois Thomas, of Berkeley, Calif. However, a spokesman said the woman's name is Gail Davis. Lee Thomas and Davis are said to be the same woman. Davis is said to be in Texas under the name of Patricia Ann Smith. Investigators said the scheme involved the president's checks with the names of Davis on them at fast food restaurants throughout the West.

 JUSTIN — President Reagan is intentionally cutting back on the country's economic problems, a national official said at a Labor Day event.

For the first time in recent years we have an administration that is deliberately — not accidentally — throwing people out of work to fight inflation," said Jim Hightower, executive vice president of the Communications Workers of America.

"No since Herbert Hoover was an American president been so callous as to make that kind of unholy bargain at the expense of workers."

net of programs, created to help those in our society who can't fully help themselves," he said, "and they even tried to punch holes in the child labor law."

A four-mile march through downtown Austin culminated in speeches by state Attorney General Jim Mattox, Treasurer Ann Richards, Agriculture Secretary Jim Hightower and former U.S. Secretary of Labor Ray Marshall.

"What we see all around us are government policies which are designed to drive us all apart," said Tom Donahue, secretary-treasurer, AFL-CIO, "policies built on ideas of not wanting to care for one another, built on ideas that we are mean-spirited people whose national aspirations are satisfied when the rich get richer and a little bit trickles down for the rest of America."

Tony Bonilla, president of the National Hispanic Conference, urged a worker coalition — a "political renaissance" — to work for Reagan's defeat next year.

Ice Cream Extravaganza!

The Student Y Association, in an effort to recruit new members, served students gallons of ice cream Tuesday. Over 100 students turned out for the free feast.

Hitchhiking not always a free ride

United Press International
 NEW YORK — Hitchhiking can be a very costly "free" ride, says a security industry executive.

Its appeal to economy-minded teenagers and young adults is far outweighed by the hidden dangers, says Edward B. Patroski, director of investigations for Pinkerton's, Inc., a private security and investigations firm.

A recent California study shows hitchhikers are very often the victims of highway crimes and are actually three times more likely to be the victim than the perpetrator.

At the same time, teenage and young adult drivers who have a natural tendency to give a ride to hitchhikers in their same age group are also at risk, Patroski says.

Some major dangers, he says, are:

—Robbery, assault and serious bodily harm from a psychopathic or criminal driver or rider.

—Threat of blackmail or false accusation of a crime by a driver or rider.

—Apprehension and fining for illegal hitchhiking or offering of a ride on state or federal highways.

—Acceptance of a ride in a vehicle operated by an unlicensed driver, or in an unlicensed vehicle.

—Acceptance of a ride with a driver who is drunk, ill or under the influence of illegal drugs.

—Accusation of transporting a minor across state lines for immoral purposes.
